DEATH CASTS SHADOW OVER OHIO VILLAGE

Grief-Stunned Parents Plan Funerals for Victims of Bus Crash

DRIVER IS BLAMED

Coroner Declares His Negligence Responsible for 10 Deaths

[illegible], Jan. 23—The black wings of death cast a sinister shadow over [illegible] here today as heart-torn and grief-stunned parents and families made preparations for funerals of their children and a man whose life was snatched away in yesterday's [illegible] the tragedy near here last night.

To each of those bereaved families today, in their minds they [illegible] the horrible imprint of yesterday's [illegible] scene—a scene, which already, they will carry with them to their own graves. It is [illegible] a monstrous steel demon [illegible] into a loaded school bus of [illegible].

Two of the child victims will be [illegible] Woodvale cemetery tomorrow afternoon. They are William [illegible], 14, and his seven-year-old [illegible] Vernon.

Arrange Funerals

In the household of Valentine [illegible], which was hardest hit by the [illegible], funeral services will be held Saturday morning for three little children. Two of them are girls, Dorothy, 11, and Rita, 9. The other is a boy, Vincent, 6.

Funeral services for Jacob Walters, 12, and his nine-year-old sister, Josephine, will be held Saturday afternoon. They will be buried in Lutheran cemetery.

Rev. [illegible] William Pastorcek will be buried tomorrow morning after funeral services at St. Adelbert's church.

The body of Evelyn Koltenbach, 7, will be buried in Calvary cemetery Saturday following funeral services at St. Mary's church.

John Taylor, 36, driver of the ill-fated bus, who was himself a father, will be buried Saturday in Lutheran cemetery following funeral services at St. Paul's Lutheran church.

Blame Driver's Negligence

Negligence of the driver, Taylor, was responsible for the horrible bus [illegible] near here yesterday, Coroner [illegible] J. Pearse indicated today as bus [illegible] from Cleveland to Ohio pressed demands [illegible] for a statewide program for safety control of school and passenger buses.

Formal verdict of the coroner [illegible] this morning upon official statements of John Hand, 68-year-old engineer of the train which ploughed into the bus, and John Deal, fireman. Coroner Pearse indicated, however, that he was satisfied that negligence of John Taylor, 36, driver of the bus, was to blame for the accident.

In unofficial statements, both Hand and Deal said that neither saw the bus on the tracks in front of their locomotive. Neither said they realized an accident occurred until they heard the crash.

"Evidence thus far," Coroner Pearse asserted, "shows that it was an unintentional case of negligence. There was no obstructed view of the railroad at the point of the crash for perhaps three miles.

Urges 2 Men on Buses

"My recommendation will be that the state of Ohio compel two men to operate the crew of a bus, either school or commercial. In my belief that is the only way to put a stop for once and for all to the many bus tragedies

EXTRA PRECAUTIONS URGED BY RAYBURN

Local School Head Calls for Safe Bus Operations in Marion County

Use of all possible precaution to prevent school children of this county from the possibility of such a catastrophe as that which claimed the lives of nine students near Berea yesterday morning was urged last night by C. B. Rayburn, county superintendent of schools.

Marion county has been very fortunate not to have any such [illegible], Mr. Rayburn stated in a talk given in an intermission of the [illegible] agriculture public speaking contest held last night in Central [illegible] school. "However, with approximately 100 school trucks operating in this county, the element [illegible] is always present."

Drivers must stop cars and trucks themselves that there is no [illegible] at a crossing if the number of [illegible] is to be reduced, according Rayburn. This he urges using only half-way precautions and leaving the rest [illegible].

Subject of using caution at crossings is one that should be [illegible] and discussed everywhere the farm bureau, grange, [illegible] association meetings, [illegible] the Sunday school class, he declared.

"Teams and other student [illegible] must do night driving [illegible] urged to observe safety [illegible] county school head said, [illegible] all hilarity and cheering [illegible] groups should be stopped [illegible] approaches crossings. Give [illegible] chance to hear a train if Mr. Rayburn urged.

City Poor Need Clothes—Won't You Help?

CHILDREN without shoes and stockings. Children without underwear. Mothers trying to keep their little ones warm with clothes insufficient for freezing temperatures, let alone sub-zero weather such as Marion is experiencing.

Fathers out of work, desperate in their attempt to get clothing for their children and their wives.

That condition confronted Marion today as some of the coldest weather in years swept down upon the city.

Haven't you some old clothing, good, warm clothing that you are not using—clothing that you would be glad to give these poor, needy children and their tired, worried mothers?

Marion's needy are in a desperate condition.

The Community Fund agencies and the city relief office are doing their best to feed the city's hungry and to clothe those without warm garments.

The Community Fund has extended to its charity agencies additional money to provide aid for the poor; the city is swamped with pleas and City Relief Officer C. M. Tobin is caring for scores of families.

That's where the Community Fund money and the city relief fund money is going. But conditions here are unprecedented and the need for this relief is extreme, far beyond the present ability of the Fund and the city to meet.

So today The Marion Star makes a special request of its readers to go through their wardrobes, find clothing they are not using and to turn it over to the poor.

The Star has been pledged the cooperation of the Marion Young Men's Christian association, the city relief office, the Marion chapter of the Red Cross and the Salvation Army.

The Y. M. C. A. through Secretary Earl N. Hale, has agreed to receive this clothing. A front room of the "Y" will be turned over to receive donations. The city relief office, the Red Cross and the Salvation Army will distribute this clothing to the needy people of Marion.

The Star urges you to bring this clothing—especially garments for women and children, shoes, stockings, underwear—to the Y. M. C. A. The building is open from 8 o'clock in the morning until 10 o'clock at night.

And if you are unable to bring the clothing to the "Y," just call the Y. M. C. A. by telephone—No. 3127, or The Star—No. 2311—and The Star's delivery trucks will come Saturday morning and collect this clothing.

Put the clothing in the best condition possible, for many of these needy people will be unable to repair it.

Mayor L. Don Jones today gave his unqualified approval to the plan of The Star.

"There is a greater need for clothing for these poor people than ever before in Marion's history and I'll do anything to help your plan," the mayor declared.

DO THIS FOR MARION'S NEEDY.

SAY, STRANGER—

But Man Picks Out Constable for Liquor Query

POMEROY, Jan. 23—Constable Loid Hysell, of Middleport, today decided to get a larger badge and to display it more prominently.

A stranger accosted him on a street in Middleport, near here, last night, and, after a few preliminary remarks, asked, "Where can a fellow get a drink in this town?"

He did not stay to hear all of Constable Hysell's speech, after he had discovered the badge, which was partly covered by his coat.

When the officer finished his little dissertation, he found he was talking to himself. The stranger had fled.

Appeal for Aid Sent to Government as Ships Are Caught in Ice Floes

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—Starvation and death from the sub-zero temperatures confront Rear Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd and members of his South Polar expedition if they are unable to leave the wastes of the Antarctic before the impassable ice packs form next month, the state department declared today.

The department admitted the seriousness of the situation now facing the Byrd party in its instructions to American Minister to Norway Swenson to appeal to that government to have Norwegian whaling vessels now in the vicinity of the Polar region aid Byrd's boats to penetrate the ice.

The department's instructions read: "The Byrd expedition now is icebound and is not equipped to spend another winter on the barrier as the food supply is virtually exhausted and Admiral Byrd has reported that several members of the expedition could not survive such an experience."

Swenson was told that unless Byrd received aid within 30 days no vessel

SAYS RAMSEY KILLED BY GAS

Monoxide Fumes End Life of Farmer in Auto, Coroner Reports

SOLVES MYSTERY

Funeral Services To Be Held at Home West of City Sunday

"Death by carbon-monoxide gas," was the verdict given by the county coroner, Dr. B. D. Osborn, following an investigation yesterday afternoon of the case of Ray E. Ramsey, 25-year-old Marion county farmer found dead in his Ford coupe yesterday morning about 10 o'clock on a mud pike near his home on the Rayl-Decypher pk., eight miles west of the city.

At the time the body was found, the cause of death was a mystery. From appearances, the young man had frozen to death when his car was stalled by the rough mud road and a frozen radiator, about a half mile from his home.

Starts for Visit

He had left home about 7 o'clock on Tuesday night to visit a friend near Big Island. Occasionally he had stayed all night with his friend, and his failure to return did not alarm his family.

The body was found frozen by a passerby. Dr. Osborn was called to investigate yesterday afternoon, and filed his report today.

Surviving the young man are three brothers, Cecil L. Ramsey, Delbert V. Ramsey and Clyde R. Ramsey, and a sister, Miss Dorothy Ramsey, all at home, and a sister, Mrs. Gertrude Strawser, of Marion.

The three brothers had accompanied their brother to Marion, Tuesday and Wednesday, to a trial in probate court here, in which they had filed exceptions to a report made by the administrator of the estate of their father, Robert E. Ramsey. Mr. Ramsey died March 11, 1929, leaving his widow, Mrs. Rose Ramsey, who is living at home.

Funeral Sunday

Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home, in charge of the Rev. Lawrence A. Wood, pastor of Trinity Baptist church. Interment will be made in Pleasant Hill cemetery.

The body may be viewed at the C. E. Curtis Co. funeral home, East Center st., after 7 o'clock tonight. It will be moved to the Ramsey home Friday morning.

LONDON, Jan. 23—America's naval agreement of parity with Great Britain was laid before the assembled naval powers of the world today at the first full session of the London naval arms conference which saw an extensive exchange between of the different lines of naval armament reduction.

By common agreement, no specific programs of demands were made. The figures presented by each chief delegate were confined to full presentations of his particular nation's needs from the standpoint of naval strength as related to geographical position and political responsibilities.

A peaceful atmosphere pervaded the meeting, none of the delegates exhibited a hostile desire to question the position of the others.

U. S. Willing To Reduce

Secretary of State Stimson started his speech by declaring that he would make no complete statement of America's requirements at "this meeting but added that "these requirements are well understood and cheerfully recognized by the country that is our host."

"We are agreed that there shall be naval equality between us," he went on, "and believe that is the best method of promoting the beneficient aims of the conference."

Colonel Stimson stressed the fact that naval needs were relative to

PLAN STATUE OF STUDENT SLAYER

VIENNA, Jan. 23—With the London conference struggling to prevent future wars by cutting down the navies of the world, reports reached here today that a statue is to be erected to the man who was immediately responsible for the outbreak of the cataclysm of 1914.

A Belgrade dispatch to the Vienna Tageblatt declared that preparations are being made to erect a lasting monument to Ferdinand Gavrilo Princip, the Bosnian student who fired the fatal shots on June 28, 1914, which killed Archduke Francis Ferdinand, heir to the Austrian throne, and his consort, Countess Hohenberg.

While there were more deep-seated causes, this double assassination was the immediate cause of the World war.

RECEIVER IS NAMED FOR M'MURRAY CO.

J. M. Barringer Placed in Charge of Pioneer Sulky Concern

The McMurray Sulky Co., manufacturers of buggies and racing sulkies in Marion since the close of the Civil war, was placed in the hands of a receiver today in a court action started by the Marion National Bank Co. Although technically the receivership was not voluntary, it was agreed to by the Sulky company, it was stated today.

The petition filed by the banking company states that it is a creditor of the Sulky company and that the firm has failed to meet its obligations.

James M. Barringer has been named receiver for the Sulky company by Judge George D. Sapp in common pleas court. Barringer's bond was set at $10,000.

Since the petition asking for the appointment of the receiver was filed by the Sulky company itself there is no report in the court proceedings concerning the financial condition of the Sulky concern.

WINTRY BLAST BRINGS MARK OF TEN BELOW

Marion Caught in Second Severe Sub-Zero Wave Within Week, Lacking Only Two Degrees of Equaling 12-Year Record

BREAK PROMISED TONIGHT AND FRIDAY

Ohio Generally Shivering in Temperatures Ranging from 6 to 16 Below; Cold Intense in Middle West; Two Added to Chicago Death Toll

Another surprise cold wave swooped upon Marion last night and early this morning, giving this city its second spell of bitterly cold and biting temperatures within a week, and driving the mercury down to 10 below zero.

Strong winds buffeted the severe temperatures into every nook and corner of the city, crippled automobiles and all motor traffic, and completely frosted windows with the cold frost.

Last night's low mark, which lacked but two degrees of matching the cold wave of last Saturday, when the mercury dropped to 12 below, the coldest in 12 years, followed a drop of 39 degrees during the night. Already complaining of the frigid siege of winter which has kept the city below freezing temperatures for nearly a week, Marionites were completely wintry-minded today.

Slow Rise Starts

Temperatures were slowly rising this morning, and apparently will take the course predicted by weather prognosticators today. "Fair and warmer tonight," was the official forecast. This will be followed by cloudy and warmer weather Friday, with probable light snowfall Friday night, according to official forecasters.

A year ago found Marion basking in the comparative warmth of 44-degree weather, with the mercury remaining above the 24 degree mark.

Reports reaching this city today indicated that the sub-zero temperatures which invaded Marion are but a part of a cold wave which is enveloping Ohio and many southern and middlewest states. Temperatures of from 6 to 16 degrees below zero were recorded in various sections of Ohio.

All Ohio Shivers

The sub-zero weather which prevailed throughout the state was generally below that which was recorded last Saturday, and this is the coldest day of the year thus far for several regions of Ohio.

Perry county reported the lowest mark in the state with 16 degrees, under zero being recorded in the rural districts. New Lexington reported 12 below zero.

The previous low mark of the season was recorded at Bowling Green, where the official government thermometer reached 14 degrees below zero. Thirteen degrees below was recorded there today, while Ottawa reported one degree higher.

Southwestern Ohio was experiencing its coldest weather of the year, with 14 degrees below zero being recorded in several places.

Tiffin reported a low mark of 10 degrees below zero and Fostoria had a low mark of eight.

An almost exact counterpart of last week's frigid wave, the present cold blast was most severe in the middle west and the plains states, yesterday, extending near-zero temperatures to practically every section of the south.

35 at Ono Point

Throughout the middle west, temperatures continued between eight degrees below zero in the Great Lakes region to 30 below in parts of Iowa and western Illinois. Moline, Ill., reported an unofficial temperature of 32 below zero, while Darlington, Wis., was held in the grip of an unofficial 35 below temperature.

Blizzards in the Central States accompanied almost unprecedented low temperatures, the worst of which was felt in northwestern Colorado with

Pneumonia and Flu in Flood District

VINCENNES, Ind., Jan. 23—Sub-zero temperatures are blamed for scores of pneumonia and influenza cases reported today among the hundreds of families marooned by flood waters from the Wabash and White rivers.

Red Cross surveys show that 2,265 families are flood sufferers with 1,020 of these families homeless and the rest in need of assistance.

Leaders of relief expeditions reported that many cases of pneumonia, smallpox and influenza are among the refugees who sought shelter in the crowded buildings in the De Kee chapel area. The first floors of these buildings are flooded and the refugees are crowded in the second floors.

A Red Cross airplane, piloted by Lieuts. Lawrence Genardo and Walter Peck, dropped food and emergency medical supplies to the refugees in this area yesterday, shortly before dusk. The fliers said ice jams surrounding this area are too thick to allow relief work by boat.

No word has been received yet from 85 residents of Decker township where several feet of water and ice has covered the territory.

Ice Hinders Rescue Work of Red Cross

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 23—Battling sub-zero weather rescue crews today pushed relentlessly through ice-jammed flood overflows in an attempt to reach hundreds of families who are marooned in the frozen fastness of flood-wrecked southwestern Missouri and northwestern Arkansas.

Walter Overfield, representative of the American Red Cross, which is conducting the relief expedition, will establish temporary headquarters at Dell, Ark., and at another point southwest of Blytheville. Continued cold weather, it was feared, would seriously hinder rescue operations.

STOMACH UPSET

Get at the real cause. That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets help arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, people rarely suffer from indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Try Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound. Know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain. All druggists, 15c, 30c and 60c. Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like.—Adv.

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe Mixed at Home

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up a stubborn, lingering cough. It takes but a moment to prepare, costs little, but it gives real relief and for those dreaded coughs that follow severe cold epidemics, it's unsurpassed.

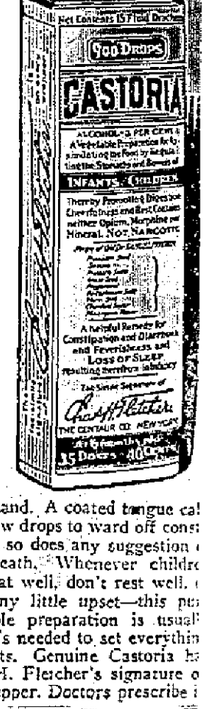
From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour into a pint bottle and then fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. This you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe and heal the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germ laden phlegm and eases the chest, sore in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agents of creosote, a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of distressing coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Restless Children



Children will fret, often for no apparent reason. But there's always one sure way to comfort a restless, fretful child, Castoria! Harmless as the recipe on the wrapper; mild and bland as it tastes. But its gentle action soothes a youngster more surely than some powerful medicine that is meant for the stronger systems of adults.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given the tiniest infant—as often as there is any need. In cases of colic, diarrhea, or similar disturbance, it is invaluable. But it has everyday uses all mothers should understand. A coated tongue calls for a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever children don't eat well, don't rest well, have any little upset—this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed to set everything to rights. Genuine Castoria has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. Doctors prescribe it.

During your criminal career have you ever noticed how careless people get in their speech in the presence of an unconscious man? Well, just imagine for once that the man wasn't really unconscious. * * *"

An Enemy Returned

Vic pulled Jimmie's sleeve as he got up to go out with Hyslop on a reconnoitering expedition over the Vine for the evening's manoeuvers.

"Run away for a minute, H. H.!" she added. "I want to speak to Jimmie."

"Well!" said Rezaire, when Hyslop had tactfully gone outside.

"Jimmie, I've got bad news."

"What?"

"When I got back to my flat last night I found a note under the door."

"A note?"

"This." Vic drew a letter from her bag.

Rezaire took it, and went white as he recognized the handwriting.

"Sam!" he exclaimed. "But he's—he's in the States."

"Was," corrected the girl.

"But * * *"

She picked up a newspaper, turned a page and pointed to a paragraph. It referred to the recent theft of famous pictures from Lord Stamping's collection, and stated that it was now established beyond doubt that this and a subsequent similar theft in Berkshire were the work of a gang of specialists from America.

"That's why he's over" said Vic.

"In that lot? But, damn it, he must be mad. I mean, if the police here catch him he'll take the 9 o'clock walk to glory. He's wanted for the big thing."

"I know." The girl nodded soberly. "Read the note!"

Dear Vic (he read)

Didn't except me, did you? I'm going to drop in on a few old friends now I'm over. And it no good going to the "nose-fellows" about me, because it'll only get you and others into trouble. And I'm well hidden here. I'm going to come and see you at 11 tomorrow. Don't go trying a trap, because I shall know about it. I'm as clever now as any of the cowardly pikers you are so fond of.

With love,
S.

"Well, I'm damned!" Jimmie was biting his lips as he felt his old terror sweeping back with overwhelming force on realizing that Sam, his enemy, was actually in England. "The man must have been tight or mad when he wrote that. Why, we can tip him off to the police."

"No."

"No? Why not?"

"In the first place, he must be well covered before he'd dare write that. And it doesn't tell the police anything; I bet they've heard he's over."

"But tomorrow?"

"He won't come if we try anything, and it'll only make him mad. Which'll be worse for me. I saw a fellow on watch outside my place this morning. A little fellow with a face like a white rat."

"Or a ferret?" asked Jimmie, going pale.

"Yes."

"My God!" Rezaire was much disturbed. "He trailed me the other day. I didn't know he was Sam's jackal. Thank God I shook him off!" He passed a hand across his forehead and found it wet.

"Vic!" he stammered. "Can you meet him tomorrow and tell him I'm not in London? For Heaven's sake don't give me away to him. Find out what he wants!"

"I know what he wants."

"What?"

"Me."

"You. But I thought * * *"

"Thought I'd given him the frozen shoulder in Paris. So I did. But he swore then he'd come back for me. He knows I'm not struck on him. He knows I'm * * *"

To Be in Hiding

Jimmie suddenly remembered the last line of Sam's letter. Did it mean? * * * He looked at Vic and she dropped her eyes. Then his fear returned, swamping all else:

"But Sam. I—I thought he was after me."

Vic looked at him queerly. "That's all part of it, Jimmie," she said steadily. "You must keep out of his way."

"You bet," replied Jimmie with feeling.

"I'll deal with him tomorrow," he added the girl calmly.

Rezaire hesitated. He tried to think calmly. He knew Sam was not above trying to take what he wanted by force. He looked keenly at Vic, and saw suddenly that she was desperately afraid.

He swallowed once or twice; then with a dry throat muttered:

"Vic! Let me—Hyslop and me that is—be on hand in your flat tomorrow. Not so as Sam can see us, but hidden away—just in case you want help."

Vic stretched out a hand. She, better than any one else, knew Jimmie's weakness and his terror of Sam; and she realized the sacrifice, as much as she desired it.

"All right," she agreed. "If everything we've planned for tonight is over satisfactorily by then, come to the back entrance of Shrewsbury court by 10; and see you aren't spotted. Then I'll let you in and hide you. * * * And—thank you, Jimmie," she finished simply.

Rezaire muttered something and left her to go after Hyslop. He felt a different man. All his self-confidence had oozed out of him with the new and terrible knowledge that Sam was in London. Sam with his plotting for revenge and the evil knife he loved so well. He saw an enemy in every passerby, and it was not till he had been listening some time to Hyslop's cheery burble that he partially regained his self-reliance and his interest in the coming night's work.

Waiting for a Signal

Jimmie Rezaire, a furtive, crouching figure on the roof beside the Coin de Paradis window, was peering intently over the parapet into the darkness beneath. By the aid of Hyslop's little steel tool with the teeth that gripped the bolts and moved them a fraction of an inch each time, he had some while ago finished his skillful manipulation of the attic shutters, and the upper portion of the Coin de Paradis now lay open to him whenever he chose to enter. But he was waiting for a signal from Hyslop hidden below on the far side of the wall which inclosed the back premises of the restaurant; and Hyslop was watching a lighted window just below the attic which showed that there was still some one inside the room with the stolen Murchison sighter.

Jimmie shifted his position restlessly and cursed to himself. It was getting late. If he didn't hear from Hyslop soon, he would have himself to signal that he was going in in spite of the light in the room below, though for the smoothest working of his plan he wanted that room to be empty.

Even as he moved, the awaited signal came—the faint red glow of a torch covered by a human hand.

It shone dimly thrice, and Jimmie repeated it once in answer. In another moment he had clambered over the sill and had disappeared inside the attic as noiselessly as a shadow.

His feet touched bare boards and there was a smell of emptiness. He had expected that the attic would be unoccupied, but he moved with infinite caution to avoid knocking over any lumber. His outstretched fingers soon touched a wall which he followed to a door. He paused to satisfy himself there was no one outside and then switched on his torch.

Found Door Locked

It shone on a bare, sloping-roofed apartment, empty except for some piled boxes and a roll or two of carpet; but Jimmie's first care was to rebolt the shutters and remove all traces of his entry, even examining the floor to make certain the dusty surface did not show footmarks. Then he stole to the door. Though it was locked, a bare moment's work with a businesslike skeleton key saw him peeping cautiously through into another and larger attic, sparsely furnished and with two camp beds. In the near corner was a trapdoor in the floor, the only means of egress. After relocking the door behind him, Jimmie switched off his torch and tested the trapdoor, to find that luckily it was not fastened. He raised it sufficiently to look through.

For about half a minute he stared into the lighted passage beneath him, fixing all the details in his mind, for he would need them later. Leading down from the trapdoor was the ladder Vic had mentioned; near its foot was the door to the back room and beyond this the door to the lavatory and the staircase leading further downward. From below came the sounds of the restaurant in full swing, the clatter of plates and an occasional order shouted in French, while the hot smell of cooking hung against the ceiling and steamed up past his face through the opening.

Silently Jimmie opened the trapdoor to its full extent and drew from his pocket a queer tool like a small metal bar held at the end by a rubber grip. This he laid beside him and, stretching an arm downward, he just managed to reach the socket of the electric light that hung by a cord from the ceiling close by and illuminated the landing. Pulling it in to him he cast a last swift glance round to impress the scene finally on his memory; then he detached the globe and laid it beside him, thus leaving the upper floor in darkness. The socket he retained in his hand.

All Lights Out

Everything had been done with skill and rapidity indeed, barely five minutes had passed since he entered the attic. He wondered if Hyslop were ready, too, down below in the back yard, where a cautious reconnoitering expedition during the slack hours that afternoon had revealed an unused electric socket accessible through a scullery window.

He altered his position to one of greater readiness; from now on he would have to move very, very swiftly.

"Here goes!" he muttered and with a quick decisive movement he picked up the rubber-insulated tool beside him and jammed the metal bar across the two bared points of the globeless fixture.

A bright blue flash leaped under the touch and he saw the lights disappear in the two floors below as the fuses blew. Only a gleam from the restaurant floor persisted; then that, too, went, as Hyslop, waiting similarly equipped in his position below, managed the lower part of the house equally efficiently on seeing Rezaire's success. Before the outbreak of protest and surprise from the diners had died down, Jimmie had replaced the globe, letting it swing back uselessly on its cord, closed the trapdoor, and was at the foot of the attic ladder.

"Well done, H. H.!" he was thinking to himself, as he noiselessly and hurriedly made his way toward the back room. He tried the door; then his fingers moved swiftly among his keys. There was now only a single lock keeping him from the tin case pretending so innocently to contain a Corona typewriter—only a door between him and the Murchison sighter.

Love's Reawakening

The Story of a Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge Dares Dicky's Wrath and Removes the Bullets from His Revolver

MY eyes mechanically followed Dicky's movements as he transferred his revolver from the ledge place he had thought safe from Junior, to his desk, and locked the desk. But my brain was racing from one angle of my small son's talk to another, trying to determine what he really did know of the gun and its hiding place.

"Children are so secretive," I said lamely at last, while Dicky lighted into a lounge suit. All idea of showing him my plans for the basement playroom had vanished, dwarfed by the new problem.

"You think he may have known all the time?" Dicky said, and his tone was truculent. "That would mean a capacity for deceit which the boy never has shown."

"I don't mean deceit," I said stoutly. "But he is so imaginative, he might be making up a play about it, the way he does with other things, and decide he ought not to tell what he knows until later."

"You he probably will make a playwright or a circus press agent some day," his father returned. "Well! there's no use mulling it over any longer. Come on down and see how near Katie has breakfast ready."

I knew it was useless, but I made one more attempt at something everywhere warned me against.

"Dicky, after this, won't you unload that gun?" I asked.

His jaw set obstinately. I knew the sign, remembered too late the submission Lillian had given me long ago.

"In handling the Dicky-bird, old dear," she had said, "you would do well to remember the old story of the Irishman driving his pig to Dublin.

"'Bigger go to Cork,' he kept shouting loudly.

"A friend hearing him, protested: 'But, Pat, you want to go to Dublin.'

"'Whist,' Pat replied in a panic. 'Don't say that even in a whisper. The pig thinks I want him to go to Cork so he's headed toward Dublin.'"

Dicky Refuses

Right well did my temperamental husband prove the truth of his old friend's characterization of him.

"No, I won't unload that gun," he said.

For an instant I saw red, was ready to spring at him and fight in primitive fashion for the chance to unload the revolver. Then long experience of him whispered that I must not inflame his obstinacy further. Perhaps I should be able to think of some way to persuade him to the course which I was sure he secretly approved, but was too foolishly proud to act on because of his own dictum against it.

Without a word I turned and went toward the door.

"Mad by me?" Dicky asked cunningly, at my elbow.

"Not at you but at your obstinacy," I told him smiling. "But if you won't, you won't."

"You ought to know that by this time," he said with a sort of gloating over his own firmness which was more maddening than his former rudeness. "But please stop worrying. The key to the desk shall not leave my body unless I step an automobile and somebody frisks my dead body."

Madge Unloads the Gun

"Don't!" I shuddered, and in the laugh which he gave my shivers he apparently put away all thought of the hidden revolver and Junior's possible knowledge of it, for he began to question me concerning my plans for the basement as if there had been nothing else on our minds.

I tried to simulate the enthusiasm which had been mine over the project, but I could think of nothing save the writing desk in which Dicky had locked the revolver. All through breakfast I kept recalling the picture of his locking the desk and putting the key in his pocket, the thing being an obsession with me, and when the meal was ended, I knew what I was going to do.

"May I change my mind about that hunting expedition for William and Henry?" I put the question to Dicky at my first opportunity after breakfast to speak to him alone.

"That's your privilege," my husband retorted, looking at me with curiosity, nevertheless. "But I thought you wanted to postpone it until after Christmas."

"I did, but I've been thinking it over, and I believe I'd rather let them have one try at it before bedtime."

"Get it out of their systems?" Dicky grinned.

"I'm not so optimistic as that." With an effort I smiled back at him. "But they may not be able to wait with comparative patience for a post Christmas expedition. Then I've decided to take Roderick and Junior for Christmas greens today with a picnic fire, and if the older boys come along—"

"They'll have the job so thoroughly that the smaller kids will be nowhere," Dicky interrupted. "I get you, and I'll take them. Send them up to my room."

I waited feverishly until he had changed to his hunting clothes and had driven away with two wildly excited boys. Then, with a word to Katherine to keep Roderick and Junior, with her, I went into Dicky's room, took the key of the writing desk from the pocket of the coat he had just discarded, opened the desk, lifted out the revolver and carefully unloaded it.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

TOMORROW will be Friday, and then it will be Saturday and no school, and Saturday never comes any too soon for me and Jubilee. I bet he wonders what I do all day in school whilst he is out doors, and I set in school all day and wonder what he is doing on the outside while I am on the inside, and then all at once the teacher says, "Thomas Aristides, please tell the class what you are thinking about." I get up and say I am thinking about geozrophy, and that isn't a lie, because geography is different places in the world, and that is where Jubilee is whilst I am in school boring my nose into a book like it was a gimlet.

My unkle has not got back yet, and I wouldn't care if someone would point a shotgun or something at my unkle like Feeble's father did at my unkle. My father says if my unkle isn't back by the first of March he will lose his job, and my mother says he thinks if he is back before then he will lose his life, and he never did think more of a job than he does of his life. I don't blame him. Feeble's father only wanted to show him the gun but he didn't know it.

When I got all my work done and went in to feed my face this morning everybody was around the table, and even after I got sot I had to get up and wash my hands. Then Feeble and Youniss and Maggie came and when I went in Feeble had slid into my chair and was eating the pancakes I had put on my plate, and I was just going to go out and fix me a place at the kitchen table and set out there with Youniss and Maggie, the girl that got fascinated on her leg so it wouldn't show, when Maggie got one toe under the back round of Feeble's chair and gave it a quick lift and jerk just when Feeble was reaching for something, and the chair came out so sudden that when Feeble went down she hit her chin on the side of my plate and got pancake and syrup all over her face, and then she hit the floor so hard she almost shook the house, and she went out to the kitchen to wash her face and when she came back I was in my place eating my breakfast. She said she never did think I would treat a lady that way, and I said I never would. So she thought I was the one that gave her a tumble. Females are not so very brite. I think Youniss was glad it happened to her.

There is not much snow left now and I bet it will be all gone in a few days. I would like to go swimming right now.

SAYS BOAT HAS NOT REACHED BYRD BASE

New Yorker Asserts Unprecedented Condition of Ice Pack Handicap

NEW YORK, Jan. 23—A report originating with an amateur radio operator in Washingtonville, Ohio, that the City of New York, flagship of the Byrd Antarctic expedition, had reached the Antarctic ice barrier on which is Little America, Admiral Byrd's base, was declared today to be without basis by Capt. H. H. Bailey, manager of the expedition and personal representative of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd in New York.

"On the contrary," said Captain Bailey, "the City of New York has reached only the edge of the ice pack in Ross sea, a very different matter. And owing to the unprecedent condition of the ice pack, the New York and the Eleanor Bolling may not succeed in negotiating the northward passage to Admiral Byrd's base—at least not without the aid of heavier vessels. This is a critical contingency. The Eleanor Bolling will ring the City of New York on the northern edge of the ice pack about Jan. 28. It is by that time the ice is sufficiently open, both vessels will proceed south to Little America. But there is at present no indication that the ice pack will be sufficiently open.

MONEY READY FOR HOSPITAL PURCHASE

Woman's Board Prepared To Buy Pathological Room Equipment

The Woman's Board of City hospital is ready to go ahead with the purchase of equipment for the new pathological laboratory at City hospital, as soon as the list of necessary equipment submitted to the hospital committee of the Marion Medical Academy, is approved.

This announcement was made at a meeting of the board yesterday with Mrs. Bennett Bindley and Mrs. Daniel LaMarche, at the Bindley home, East Center st.

Patrons of the two annual charity balls given by the board may feel that their money is going into this humanitarian project, for the proceeds from the balls will buy the equipment necessary for the laboratory.

Mrs. John T. McNamara, chairman of the survey committee, and the women of the committee, Mrs. Ray Reber King, Mrs. J. F. Prendergast, Mrs. Edmund H. Keller, and Mrs. Frank J. Longshore, have visited laboratories in hospitals of cities corresponding in size to Marion, and have been able to present an accurate and complete report to the hospital committee.

The room to be furnished is in the basement of the hospital. A technician to care for the room and supplies will be hired by the city. As the equipment becomes worn, or new equipment is needed, the woman's board will furnish it.

The next meeting of the board will be held Feb. 5 with Mrs. Roscoe D. Mozzer, South Prospect st., assisted by Mrs. J. Malcolm Strelitz.

NOT OFFICIAL

Local Weather Observer Says Porch Thermometer Not Always Reliable

Thermometers have at least one human quality. They do not always tell the truth.

There is only one thermometer in Marion that registers the official temperature. It is located at the rear of the home of Dr. E. H. Raffensperger, the city's official weather observer, on South Prospect st.

Dr. Raffensperger has another thermometer that is not official. It is one of the large makes, given away by a local business firm as an advertisement, and is stationed on the Raffensperger front porch where its figures may easily be seen by passers-by.

Apparently many citizens are under the impression that this is the official weather register, for when unusual conditions exist, as during the present cold wave, hundreds stop in front of the Raffensperger home to ascertain the temperature reading.

The front porch thermometer, Dr. Raffensperger said today, is fairly accurate when shielded from the sun, but when hit by Sol's rays frequently registers nine or 10 degrees higher than official.

Maze of Legal Tangles Holding Up Thayer Case

CANTON, Jan. 23—With a maze of legal tangles and argumentation constantly bobbing up during the course of the trial of Albert L. Thayer, New Castle, Pa., architect for the Molly Stark Tuberculosis sanitarium, charged with soliciting a $7,500 bribe, it was predicted that the jury will not get the case until sometime next week.

Thayer, who is charged with having solicited the $7,500 bribe from George F. S. Melbourne, general contractor for the hospital, by "juggling accounts and altering specifications," took the stand in his own defense yesterday.

To Rededicate Lincoln's Tomb Early Next Spring

CHICAGO, Jan. 23—When spring comes, a labor of love that will touch a responsive cord in the heart of every American is to begin at Springfield, Ill. The tomb of Abraham Lincoln, too long neglected, is to be reconstructed and rededicated.

Charles Herrick Hammond of Chicago, state supervising architect, has announced completion of extensive plans for the remodeling. The start of actual work has been deferred until after the oncoming winter, but in the meantime contracts are to be let in order to prepare preliminary essentials for a speedy consummation of the task. Approximately $175,000 is to be expended in this job that many officials have dreamed of in the past—and passed on to successors in office.

Project Is Pushed

Governor Emmerson, director of public works Harry H. Cleveland, Architect Hammond and legislative leaders, however, pushed the project to the utmost of their powers, and in another year rehabilitation of the Great Emancipator's shrine will be a reality.

The plan as it stands at present envisions a majestic mausoleum in place of the present structure. Enlargement of the crypt containing the bodies of Lincoln's immediate family is called for, which will necessitate moving the caskets about nine feet, although Lincoln's body will not be moved.

The exterior is to be repaired in its entirety and rebuilt in places, but the bulk of the improvements are to be made on the interior. The inconvenient layout that has hitherto forced visitors to leave the building in the course of their inspection, walk around the outside of the monument to re-enter at a small door on the north side is to be simplified. A corridor will embrace the entire base of the monument.

Second Improvement

The second improvement specified will transform the rotunda housing the Lincoln collection of Herbert Fay into a beautiful reception room. Unused space under the shaft will also be utilized.

Future visitors, entering the new reception room will pass through a door at the rear and enter wide marble-lined faultlessly lighted halls that lead to the north end of the monument and there be gratified with an unhindered view of the Lincoln sarcophagus. The present south wall of the room containing the Lincoln sarcophagus will be moved back ten feet. The crypts of the family members will be in this new inner wall. The corridor is to run past this crypt wall with a plush cord marking the sarcophagus room from the hall. Natural light will be provided by a grilled window at the north designed to replace the present doorway.

The exterior appearance of the building will not undergo changes, although the open tower will be closed to eliminate rain seepage, the monument has sustained much damage during recent winters from freezing and thawing, therefore the shaft is to be replaced entirely.

St. Genevieve marble panels set between fluted pilasters of marble are to grace the new reception room. A bronze wreath will be placed over each pilaster. Indirect lighting through glades resting in eyes of the decorative service are specified in place of the unsightly skylight. Gold leaf over plaster will decorate the ceiling, and the panels around the room will bear the Lincoln speeches inscribed on bronze tablets.

Dignity and subdued color on the reception floor will be furnished by a composition of octagonal pieces of Roman travertine marble connected by small squares of red Arkansas fossil. A conventional scroll design, executed in red fossil and pink Kasota stone is to border the room.

Passing through the door at the rear the visitor will find himself in a magnificent marble-lined passage way, seven and one-half feet wide that follows the base of the monument to the sarcophagus.

GOVERNMENT COSTS $150,000,000 MORE

Receipts from All Sources Greater Than Last Year; $200,000,000 Ahead

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—Cost of operating the government departments and bureaus will be about $150,000,000 greater the year ending June 30, than during the 1929 fiscal year, according to figures available at the treasury today.

Receipts from all sources were estimated at over $150,000,000 greater than last year, although officials hesitated to fix a definite figure owing to the uncertainty of the March and June income tax payments.

The government is now running about $200,000,000 ahead of last year in revenue, but it was anticipated that owing to the business recession during the last quarter of 1929 and the unprecedented collapse of stock prices with losses running into billions of dollars the March income tax returns would be substantially less than a year ago.

Total government expenses will not show such a large increase as will the departments and bureaus owing to material reductions in refunds of income and corporation taxes and in interest on the public debt.

The restless thermograph

tells why Ohio winters are mighty tough on motor oil

The Thermograph automatically registers minute-by-minute variations in temperature. During typical Ohio winters it often traces a rise or fall of more than 25° in a single day.

But toughest lubricating tasks are easy for this special oil, made to meet Ohio's weather

New SOHIO MOTOR OIL

free from harmful wax

JUST about the busiest things in Ohio during every winter are those intricate little machines, called Thermographs, used by official weather observers. They record the sharp shifts in Ohio temperature—warm to cool to cold to hot. And their records show, graphically, the severe demands made on motor oil in this State.

This winter you have a new motor oil made especially to stand this grueling pace—New Sohio. Now you can be sure of positive lubrication for your motor no matter how variable the temperature may be. You can count on smooth, easy starts on cold mornings . . . New Sohio flows freely at low temperatures. And when there's a sudden spurt-up of the mercury you needn't fear a break-down in that tough protecting film of oil between moving parts.

Never before has a motor oil been given such flexibility and sturdiness. A newly developed refining process frees New Sohio from harmful wax at 50° below zero. This leaves an oilier oil—smoother—longer lasting—ready for the toughest lubricating tasks.

Expect These Results With New Sohio Motor Oil In Your Crankcase:

Easier starting—less drain on battery.

Less need for slow warming up.

Full, smooth power—unfailing piston seal.

Reduced carbon formation.

Less wear on moving parts.

PRESIDENTS PLAY 2 WEEK-END GAMES

TEAM JOURNEYS TO CRESTLINE FRIDAY NIGHT FOR CONTEST

Delaware Will Play Here Saturday; Two North Central Games This Week

BY KARL R. McELROY
Sports Editor, The Star

HIGHLY elated over the first victory of the season scored last Friday night over Bucyrus, the Presidents of Harding High school this afternoon will hold a light workout in preparation for the stiffest week-end cage bill of the season.

Friday night the Red and Black will play at Crestline. This should be little more than a warmup game but Harding may go back into the slump that followed them in the first four games of the year.

Saturday night Harding will be back on the home court again playing the first of two games booked with the college town team this year. Last year the Delaware quintet won both games from the locals.

The frying pan will be hot in the North Central Ohio league this week. With Harding playing non-league opposition, the interest of local fans is centering on the Mansfield-Bucyrus tilt tonight. This contest will be played at Bucyrus.

Mansfield is undefeated in the league while Bucyrus started off the season last week by losing to Harding. However, Bucyrus is being underrated since the Harding fray. The team ranks as one of the best in the N. C. O. and will be the only quintet to give Mansfield a real race.

If Harding is to have a chance at the pennant, it is up to Bucyrus to hand Mansfield a drubbing tonight. Bucyrus' zone defense will give the Murphymen plenty of trouble. Mansfield has never been able to cope with the zone with great success and fans still remember the game last year in which Harding handed Mansfield a surprise defeat.

Ashland will be playing at Shelby Friday night in the only other N. C. O. game on the program. Shelby is tied for first place with Mansfield while Ashland is down at the bottom of the standings. Galion will play at Bellevue.

Scott Going Down to Miami Intent on Winning—Through Foul or Otherwise

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, Jan. 23—Unless his manager is deceiving me in a very unfair manner, Philip Scott is going right down there to Miami and win gloriously from Jack Sharkey—on a foul.

This, anyhow, seemed to be the substance of the remarks aired by James J. Johnston today, shortly before the arrival of his Philip on the liner Homeric. He didn't say that Philip was sure to win on a foul. He merely expressed his confidence in this outcome. In fact, he seemed almost reconciled to it.

Mr. Johnston's outburst was prompted by the writer's suggestion, offered in a moment of inspired apathy, that Scott wouldn't dare claim a foul at Miami, even if he was hit so higher than the nadir.

"Wouldn't he?" said Mr. Johnston, in that refined way for which he is famous. "Well, get this: Scott is going to be hit low more than once at Miami and, if he is unable to continue, he will win the fight on a foul.

"Sharkey can't hit him on the jaw. The man doesn't live who can do that to Scott. So, when Sharkey finds that he can't swope to the head, what will he naturally do? He'll go for the body and when he does that—look out! Some of his punches will go low and they'll have to be called."

Yes, sighs James, too bad; they'll have to be called. Always the philosopher, he cheerfully sees the bright side of somebody else's troubles. He, for example, quickly forgave Otto Von Porat the night Otto hit Philip brutally upon the belt buckle. For one thing, the punch bounced Philip all the way off the Garden floor into $100,000 at Miami. For another, it wasn't James' belt buckle. He can be downright stoic about things like that.

Anyhow, James is ready to go ahead, fearlessly offering to match Philip's belt line with any punch in the world, and for all I know, the man may be fouled right into the heavyweight championship before the end of the summer.

Maybe by that time something will be done about it. Baseball introduced the foul-strike rule in order to stop old Roy Thomas and right now I'm working on a swell idea along this line for Philip. One foul, for instance, would be strike one; two fouls, strike two; three fouls—no, that won't do. You have to catch the foul tip for the third strike in baseball and you can't do that with Philip. He falls too fast.

This reminds me that Palm Beach and Miami are said to be fighting over Philip as a prospective guest, which only goes to show how consistent the man can be. Somebody always seems to be fighting over Philip—directly over him.

ROCHESTER-SHOVEL CONTEST EXPECTED TO DRAW MANY FANS

Locals Will Use Regular Lineup Against Stars of American League

THE largest crowd of the season is expected to fill the Steam Shovel gym tonight when Francis Bacon's Shovel cagers meet the Rochester Oldsmobiles at 8:30 o'clock.

The Rochester club comes to Marion as one of the best cage outfits in the east. It is composed of stars from the American basketball league. Among them are Carr, Murray, Kluender, Harrison, Burns, Barlow, McNeil, Pierson and Garvis.

The Shovels will use their regular lineup of Penry and Applecott, forwards, Schwab, center, and Compton and Bacon, guards.

Indiana and Wisconsin To Battle for Second Position

CHICAGO, Jan. 23—Second place in the Western conference basketball race hangs in the balance tonight when Indiana and Wisconsin clash at Bloomington, Ind.

A loss tonight will prove more disastrous to Wisconsin than to Indiana, for the Badgers chose to play a 10-game schedule while Indiana elected a 12-game season.

Indiana at present is one-half game behind the Wisconsin squad in the conference standing, having won two games and lost one, while Wisconsin has won three and lost one.

MEMBERS VOTE ON GOLF CLUB NAME

Local Golfers Showing Interest in Game in Spite of Cold

Although the ground is covered with snow and ice and a cold wind is howling around the corners Marion golfers have not forgotten their favorite pastime and are busy planning for no little amount of mashie swinging this summer.

Interest these winter days is centered on the naming of the new municipal course just south of the Harding Memorial and of taking a few practice swings with the putter in the parlor when the wife is visiting next door.

Six names selected from a list submitted by Marion citizens, have been mailed to members of the club. A vote is being taken on the most popular of the six. The winning name will be announced within the next few days.

Information concerning the club and applications for memberships can be obtained from C. L. Ulrich, 461 Bellefontaine av., Frank Kette and E. L. Alexander.

Mostil, Hollocher Cases 2 Tragedies in Baseball

NEW YORK, Jan. 23—There was a sob in every syllable of the coldly unemotional news dispatch which recently told of the passing of Johnny Mostil from the Chicago White Sox to the Toledo club of the American Association. There was something equally pathetic about the item which related that officials of the Chicago Cubs were lending a sympathetic though hardly credulous ear to the come back plans of Charley Hollocher. Thus do skeletons of the past rise up and rattle their bones. Mostil and Hollocher are among the minor tragedies of baseball.

Everybody knows the famous Mostil case, the story of a great ball player whose illness so depressed him that he made an attempt upon his own life. Present day fans may not be so familiar with Hollocher's story.

Big Money Star

He was one of the first of the big-money purchases from the Coast League and one of the not-so-many who justified the expenditure. Hollocher could play ball. A fine hitter, he had the ease and grace of the master in handling plays around short-stop and so he was an overnight success from the moment he appeared with the Cubs. It was Hollocher, in fact, who largely was responsible for the winning of the pennant in the war year of 1918, the last National League pennant to go to Chicago previous to the victory of the McCarthy machine in the 1929 campaign.

The pitchers had a lot to do with the 1918 performance of the Cubs, but it was Hollocher whose punch kept the forward end of the batting order alive and whose fielding held the infield together. Few men ever were able to get rid of the ball with the speed of Hollocher. He received it and threw it with one continuous motion.

He was about the age of the average junior in college, so everybody figured he would outlive his generation in baseball with years to spare. Instead, he had a few fine seasons and then his name began to disappear from the line up. Finally, it passed permanently from view. Then, silence. Young as he was and in spite of his greatness, Hollocher was the premature victim of a chronic illness.

Spoke Optimistically

Nothing was heard of or from him until a comparatively few days ago when he visited the Cubs' office and spoke optimistically of his improved health. He thought he was able to come back and was willing to give the matter a trial. The Cubs encouraged him as a matter of course but the thought must have occurred to them that a man whose health prohibited him from playing ball at the age of twenty-three or thereabouts, was hardly likely to be a first class risk at the age of thirty.

And so, these human frustrations of the diamond cross paths for the moment, one of them going away, and the other hoping to come back. The Sox said they are sending Mostil down because they needed more hitting in the outfield, whereas if he was half the ball player he was four years ago, his welcome around Comiskey Park would have been indefinite.

Mostil was a good hitter then and what he could do to and with a fly ball was a thing of beauty and joy to look upon. With the gradual passing of Speaker he became the finest centerfielder in baseball, a fool-proof ball player who did everything well. Even in ill health, he continued to be a great performer and so he was at the apex of his career when the baseball world was stunned by the tragic gesture in the Sox training camp at Shreveport. He recovered after a season's rest, but he never was the same man again.

OHIO STATE CAGERS WILL SEEK INITIAL CONFERENCE VICTORY

Meet Minnesota Saturday Night with Several Changes in Lineup

COLUMBUS, Jan. 23—Although four Ohio State varsity squads will swing into action over the week-end, chief interest centers in the invasion of the Minnesota basketball team. Bent on breaking into the win column, after suffering two defeats at the hands of Big Nine teams, the Ohio State quintet will give the Gophers something to worry about.

The Buckeye lineup is expected to be altered somewhat for the invasion of the Gophers. Only two men, Hal Ervin, forward and Wesley Fesler, all-conference guard, are sure of their posts. Saturday's lineup will probably see Condon, a sophomore, at the tip-off position in place of Lowell Wrigley, another first-year man, who has started every game of the season to date.

Jack Evans, a regular for three seasons, and Bill Hinchman are battling for the forward post opposite Ervin. Stewart Holcomb, of football fame, appears to have cinched the guard post previously held by Dick Larkins, who has been out of practice with a case of bronchitis.

The Ohio State reserve quintet will play the Denison university reserves at Granville, Friday night. It will be the first game with a reserve team for the Scarlet and Gray seconds. Previous games have been played with varsity fives of Ohio colleges.

The wrestling team, with one win and one defeat on the books, will take on the University of West Virginia grapplers here Saturday afternoon. The Buckeye matmen downed Western Reserve 28-0, but lost to Michigan last week by the narrow margin of 16-14, losing by only one match. While the Mountaineer lineup is unsettled, several members of the team which met Ohio State last year, are expected to be in action Saturday.

In another athletic event of the week-end, the rifle team, which proved itself one of the best in the country last year, will fire three dual matches Saturday night. All are telegraphic meets. The University of Nevada, University of Idaho and the University of Delaware will furnish the opposition for the Buckeye shooters.

Charles Comiskey in South, with Contract of Shires

CHICAGO, Jan. 23—Modest Arthur Shires, recently of ring fame, was informed today that Charles A. Comiskey, boss of the Chicago White Sox, has departed for the sunny south, carrying with him C. Arthur's 1930 contract, if any.

Thus the contest of watchful waiting was postponed for at least another two weeks, or until Comiskey returns from Florida.

Shires is awaiting reinstatement and a contract to play first base, although he was dismissed last season for blacking the eye of Lena Blackburne, his manager.

FREDDY GRUBMIER AND GLENN WADE WILL MEET MONDAY

Heavyweights Headline Wrestling Program at Steam Shovel Gym

BEEF will be the main entree on the bill of fare Monday night when Promoter Bennie Criswell rations out his bi-weekly menu of wrestling at the Steam Shovel gym.

From an eating standpoint the beef will be tough. And as far as wrestling is concerned it will be tougher for the main go session will bring together Glenn Wade of Mississippi, and Freddy Grubmier of Chicago. Both are giants of the ring, straining the old indicator well beyond the 200 mark.

In spite of their bulk, Grubmier and Wade show speed and class. The match is expected to be filled with plenty of scientific wrestling before the referee announces the winner. It will be a finish go with two falls necessary to win.

Grubmier is known as the Iowa snake. Where the Iowa comes in is much in doubt but the snake section of his name seems to be well earned. Freddy is a regular boa constrictor with his legs. His famous scissor holds are well known and treated with no little respect throughout the wrestling world.

The giant and airplane slams are the favorite tricks of Wade. With these two holds the Mississippi river giant batters his opponent into submission.

The affair Monday night should be plenty exciting with Grubmier matching his scissors with Wade's slams.

The semi-final match has not been definitely arranged, but will be announced tomorrow by Promoter Criswell who is in Columbus ironing out the final details.

CONDUCT RITES FOR GALION BOY SCOUT

School Closes in Tribute to "Billy" Todhunter; Officials Attend Services

GALION, Jan. 23 — William "Billy" Todhunter was laid to rest yesterday afternoon in Fairview cemetery and the entire town of Galion mourns the brave 15-year-old Boy Scout who gave his life in his successful effort to save another from drowning. Cod Liver Oil Influences Hatchability of Eggs

And Is Essential Poultry Ration During Winter Feeding

Cod Liver Oil is a wonderful substitute for Sunshine, consequently its use is essential in rations that are fed during the winter and early spring when hens are confined to the laying house.

Successful poultrymen obtain good results by adding one pint of biologically tested Cod Liver Oil to 100 pounds of mash or scratch feed to the laying hens.

Experiment has proved that birds fed Cod Liver Oil are more healthy, and fertility and hatchability of eggs from these hens is increased.

Today's Review of Yesterday's Grain

CHICAGO, Jan. 23—Selling credited to Northwest account and realizing on lines purchased on the recent decline, checked an early advance in the local wheat market yesterday and caused a substantial setback before the close. Buying by houses with eastern and export connections caused the higher price average.

Corn and rye closed about steady while oats were a shade firmer. Trade in these pits continued of small volume. Corn transactions were largely local in character.

At the close wheat prices were ⅜c higher to ⅝c lower. Corn closed ⅜c lower to ⅛c higher; oats 1½@1⅝c higher, and rye ⅜c lower to ⅛c higher. Winnipeg wheat futures were unchanged to 1c higher at the close while Liverpool advanced 1⅞@2⅝d.

Better Feeling

Although there was no disposition as yet to take the constructive side of the wheat market in an aggressive fashion, there was a better feeling toward the situation in evidence in the trade. Conditions surrounding the domestic export status showed improvement, which, while not startling was general.

Liverpool and Buenos Aires markets continued to advance and gained further ground relative to Chicago. The factors behind this foreign strength were the same as the previous two days, some inquiry from the continent and lighter Argentine offerings.

Relative strength at Winnipeg with a slight widening of the Winnipeg-Chicago spread removed considerable of the apprehension the narrowing of that difference had been arousing.

Export Sales Up

Seaboard sales of wheat were up sharply with business estimated as high as 2,000,000 bu. While the greater share of this was said to be Canadian its constructive effect here was the evidence of an improved foreign demand for North American stuff.

The quarter-cent range in the May and July and half-cent range of the March delivery in the corn pit were indicative of the lightness and narrowness of activity in the yellow cereal. Locals were the principal traders and the price movement was largely governed by wheat.

While the demand in the spot market was called good and the basis ruled steady to 1c higher, there was less interest in shipping circles with sales of only 10,000 bu. Receipts and country offerings were still very light. Cold, dry weather is expected to increase receipts.

Cars of grain received and inspected were: Wheat, 4; corn, 196; oats, 10; rye, none, and barley, 6.

85 Per Cent of Blondes Artificially Bleached

BOSTON—That 85 per cent of the blondes now in circulation are artificially bleached, was what Andre Behns, director of the Wilfred Academy, told members of the Ladies' Hairdressers association of New England in convention here.

It is now possible for milday to have light hair and look natural despite any handicap nature might put in the way, as long as she has hair, Mr. Behns said.

The demand for red hair has died out, continued Mr. Behns, and hairdressers now have few calls for the brassy henna effects of a few years ago.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Fruits have undergone slight price changes in the last few days, some few varieties of grapes and other fruits having become more scarce. Emperor grapes are decidedly scarce, and are selling between 20 and 25 cents a pounds as a result. The former price was between 15 and 20 cents a pound.

Cranberries are gradually disappearing from the market, and as they become more scarce, the price is being raised. They now sell for 25 cents a pound.

Delicious apples are quoted at 10 cents a pound instead of the former three pounds for 25 cents.

BRIGHT FUTURE FOR STATE IS PREDICTED

Cooper Tells Manufacturers Things Will Pick Up in Last Half.

MANSFIELD, Jan. 23—A bright future for Ohio is predicted by Gov. Myers Y. Cooper, who returned to his offices at Columbus today, after attending the annual meeting of the Central Ohio Industrial Manufacturer's club here last night. More than 500 delegates heard the governor deliver a "prosperity" address.

Cooper spoke of the huge public improvement progress in which the state is now engaged, and said, "if industry will take the same courageous attitude in meeting disturbed conditions, I am making no idle prediction when I say that after the first six months of 1930, we will never know there was a near-panic." The governor referred to the conditions which existed last November when thousands of men in the state were threatened with unemployment.

Governor Cooper again spoke of the school bus tragedy which occurred at Berea yesterday, declaring that the accident was the result of "wanton carelessness." Greater caution on the part of those who are connected with

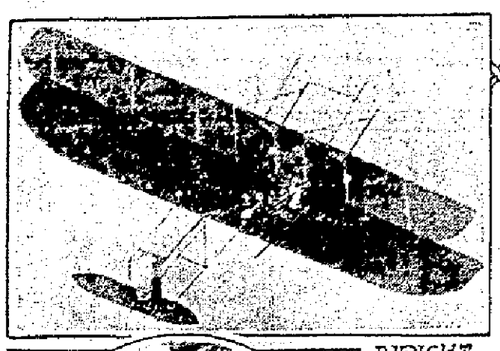
Man Conquers Air After Years of Efforts

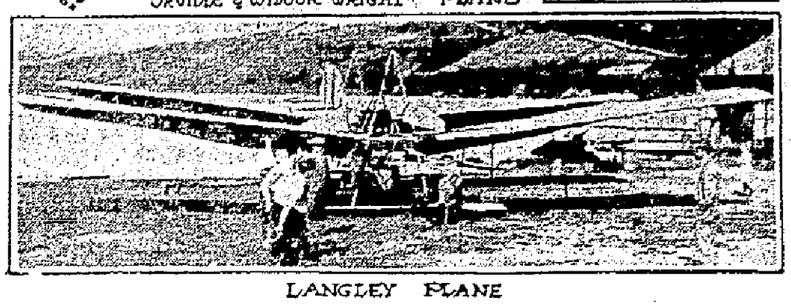


WRIGHT PLANE

ORVILLE & WILBUR WRIGHT

CURTISS TANAGER PLANE

GLENN CURTISS



LANGLEY PLANE

ROMANCE, fantasy, imagination, genius, all these elements are but part of the fascinating story of man's efforts to find a machine that would carry him through the air, swiftly, efficiently. From the crude sketches of a flying machine to be driven by flapping wings, envisioned and drawn by Leonardo da Vinci, the great painter, who lived in the fifteenth century, to the blueprints of the Curtis Tanager biplane, it is a fascinating record of achievement accomplished often under tremendous difficulties.

Dr. Samuel Pierpont Langley, the great astronomer, who was secretary of the Smithsonian Institution at Washington, was one of the many scientists who were fascinated by the possibility of building a practical flying machine. He built a wonderful steam-driven model which flew 3,000 feet at Quantico, Virginia, on May 6, 1896. The success of the first heavier-than-air machine ever to be flown in America emboldened Langley to continue his experiments, and with the aid of a grant authorized by Congress, he started to build a big man-carrying machine.

The story of the unfortunate beginning of a flight that ended in the Potomac rather than in the glorification of the inventor is too well known to need repetition. It is not so well known, however, that years afterward Glenn Curtiss took the ill-fated machine and successfully flew it at Hammonds, N. Y., thereby completely vindicating Dr. Langley.

Gliding experiments engaged the activities of many during the closing years of the last century. In 1896 Octave Chanute made many types of gliders, some of them weird five-decker contraptions, in which, however, he made some very successful flights. He paved the way for the first efforts of the Wright brothers, who were building motorless gliding machines in 1901. They made glides of over 600 feet in their trials and this encouraged them to install an engine. The rest is closely interwoven with the story of modern flying.

And now comes the whirr of the propeller of the wonderful machine that has been awarded the $100,000 safety prize by the Guggenheim Foundation. It has successfully passed every qualification test and is a biplane built by the Curtiss Aeroplane Corporation, pioneers in the field aeronautics. The Curtiss Tanager is indeed deserving of the description of foolproof, as it has conclusively proved in the various tests.

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

The bewitching charm of soft, flattering curves . . . the lure of a graceful, modern figure . . . don't spoil it by permitting your eyes to be bigger than your stomach. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Eat healthfully but not immoderately. Over-indulgence is not commended—when tempted to over-indulge, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain that modern, enchantingly-rounded figure.

*Be Moderate! . . . Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

In Seven Days Fiery, Itching Skin Gets Sure Relief

Here is a surgeon's wonderful prescription now dispensed by chemists at trifling cost, that will do more toward helping you get rid of unsightly spots and skin disease than anything you've ever used.

Not only does this great healing antiseptic oil promote rapid and healthy healing in open sores and wounds, but boils, abscesses and ulcers are almost immediately relieved and cleanly healed.

In skin diseases its action is little less than magical. The itching of Eczema is instantly stopped; the eruptions dry up and scale off in a very few days. The same is true of barbers' itch, salt rheum and other skin eruptions and inflammation.

You can obtain Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) in the original bottle at Bradley's Drug Store or any modern drug store. It is safe to use, and failure in any of the ailments noted above is rare indeed.—Adv.

FLARE FOR FORCED LANDINGS IS TESTED

Ohio Company Announces Product To Lessen Hazards of Aviation

COLUMBUS, Jan. 23—Science and invention again, today had brought aid, this time to lessen the hazards of forced landings by aviators.

A flare developed by the International Flare & Signal Co. of Tippecanoe City, was demonstrated for officials of the T. A. T. at Port Columbus here last night.

The flare which is constructed in a gun-like arrangement, is composed of a magnesium mixture and is projected by a powder charge. When fired from the plane, a fuse automatically begins burning and when this fuse burns to its end, the mixture is ignited. With the discharge of the mixture, a 15-foot square parachute is released which checks the fall of the flare.

At 2,000 feet in the air, the flare illuminates an area of approximately two miles, and develops from 500,000 to 600,000 candlepower. When about 1,000 feet above, it is possible for a person on the ground to read a newspaper.

Find 9-Pound Meteor on Farm in Indiana

ROCHESTER, Ind.—A nine pound piece of meteor was being exhibited here following its discovery on a farm a mile south of Richland Center, Ind.

Austin Burkett, a farmer, found the meteorite chip in a field where it apparently had been turned up by a plow. The meteorite is four inches long, six inches high and is shaped like a human foot.

Miss Margaret Burgess, a local high school science teacher, examined the meteorite and gave it the acid test. The result showed that the chip was almost solid copper. Burkett hopes that a huge meteor of solid copper may be imbedded somewhere on the farm.

SUPER STREET BUILT TO SPEED UP AUTOS

Chicago Moves Out Shoreline To Make Room for Lightless Highway

CHICAGO, Jan. 23—Seven miles through the second largest city in the United States in less than 6 minutes!

And not a stop light—not a street intersection.

Not a traffic expert's nightmare this—but now a reality with the opening of Leif Ericson dr. on the south side, a broad, excellently paved, beautiful stretch of boulevard bordering the front of Lake Michigan.

Motorists are now able to drive a scant few hundreds yards from the heart of the "loop," downtown section to this broad avenue of escape from the dirt and fumes of the skyscrapers and within 15 minutes can find themselves on the far south side in exclusive residential sections.

Rush Hour Traffic

During rush hours traffic moves at a tremendous speed in comparison with the choked, narrow city streets, stop lights, traffic policemen's whistles, pedestrians and other annoyances of the automobile-minded public.

Upon one side is the lake, in summer a boon with an exquisite view in winter something fascinating to observe with the lashing waves and ice-coated breakwater.

On the other side are parks, artificially constructed, with trees, paths, benches and grass.

Although the speed limit of automobiles is officially set at 35 miles per hour, as long as traffic is moving smoothly, motorcycle police good naturedly tolerate much higher rates, and, naturally, there have been few accidents on the drive now in other streets.

So that traffic may flow uninterrupted, the few side drives that run into Lake Shore dr. approach it at a gentle angle. One can do not interfere with speeding motorists in the center.

Twelve years ago where now thousands of automobile flow on a never ending procession, deep water existed.

In order to construct this drive, a tremendous engineering problem had to be solved.

Shifting Sands

For years shorting dredges piped sand from the lake bottom to the shoreline until gradually the lakefront began creeping outward. Then came the equally stupendous task of grading the shifting sands, of constructing a breakwater and concrete protecting wall that would withstand the battering of the waves for years to come. At a cost well over $3,000,000 this was done. Construction of the drive alone required almost $2,000,000 for every mile. Additional expense was incurred for landscape operations.

Within the last few weeks the final stretch of the drive was completed, the pitting across the roadway was cut with noted ceremonies, speeches were made by those responsible for the drive and the motorist, sitting serpent and contented at his wheel becomes the monument showing gratitude and appreciation.

Lack of appetite, loss of strength, skin eruptions, that "tired feeling" and other human ills may be due to a lack of red-cells in your blood.
If you are tired—lack pep—if your skin is not clear—if your appetite is "gone"—you owe it to yourself and friends to try S.S.S.
"My despair was so great I could have cried. The good cheer and merry happiness of others only mocked at my condition. I had begun to wonder why life could be so cruel. No appetite. No strength. Skin blemishes always embarrassed me. Aches and pains coursed through my body. I wanted to restore my health and live. What was I to do? . . . happily the day came and I found the right road to Health when a friend recommended S.S.S."
You may be one of the thousands with a low blood count—to this may be attributed "run-down" systems, skin troubles, and even more serious ailments. It is very dangerous to let the blood count remain below normal.
With an increase in the red-blood-cells you will be on the right road to Health. This is Nature's way to body power and to clear skin. Naturally, with your strength restored, it is easier to fight disease and infection; to enjoy your food and to sleep soundly. When firm flech takes the place of that which was once flabby, you will feel strong—your nerves will become steady—more happiness and friends will follow.
S.S.S.
You owe it to yourself and friends to give S.S.S. a trial. It helps Nature build rich, red blood. Thousands of users have testified to its benefits in unsolicited letters of gratitude. All drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical. © S.S.S. Co.

$50,000,000 TIED UP IN INSURANCE CASES

U. S. Judge Refuses To Consider Cases Brought by German Residents

PORTLAND, Jan. 23—Trial courts in Oregon have the discretionary power to decline jurisdiction in suits brought by residents of Germany to recover on life insurance policies written by American companies operating in Germany prior to the World war, according to a decision handed down here by presiding Circuit Judge Tucker in overruling a demurrer of Adolph Kahn, one of the plaintiffs, to the answer of the New York Life Insurance Co.

Kahn is one of some 270 German policy holders now seeking to recover $1,500,000 in Multnomah county on American policies subscribed to in Germany. Approximately $50,000,000 is involved in similar cases throughout the country according to C. T. Hoss, counsel for the plaintiffs.

Judge Tucker held Oregon courts should not be crowded with cases involving aliens and corporations foreign to the state.

Counsel for the defense contended that German courts alone had jurisdiction and that all premiums and benefits should be paid in German marks as provided in the policies.

Charge Customs Men With Failure To Get $16,000

Affidavit Filed with President Hoover Accusing Six Officials with Abuse of Authority; Standard Oil Head Involved

NEW YORK, Jan. 23—Failure to collect $16,000 in penalties alleged due the United States government from Herbert L. Pratt, chairman of the Standard Oil Co. of New York, for liquor alleged to have been smuggled into this country, was charged today to New York customs officials.

The officials involved are Phillip Elting, collector of the port of New York; Col. Arthur P. Foran, comptroller of customs; Henry C. Stuart, assistant collector; Thomas J. Shaw, assistant appraiser; George Brewer, assistant appraiser; and George O'Keefe, special agent here of the treasury department.

Affidavit Filed

An affidavit, it was learned, has been filed with President Hoover, accusing the six men of abuse of their official authority in granting immunity from penalties, neglect of duty, conspiracy to defraud the government, undue discrimination and gross incompetency.

The charges were sent to the president Jan. 9 by G. Rowland Monroe, counsel for the Anti-saloon league of New Jersey on behalf of Ernest S. Braidwood of Somerville, N. J. Braidwood's name figured as one of the alleged raiders who made a mysterious visit to the hunting lodge of Colonel Foran at Mount Airy, Henderson county, N. J., on Monday night.

According to charges of Braidwood, the customs officials failed to collect duties and penalties they should have levied, it was claimed, after the seizure of a large amount of liquor on the steamship Excello on May 20 of last year.

Charges Denied

According to the charges, the Excello brought a number of cases, supposed to contain flower pots but which really held champagne. The liquor, it was charged, was taken by truck to Pratt's home at Glen Cove, Long Island.

According to the affidavit, it was "understood" that Pratt had agreed to pay $25,000 for the smuggled liquor.

The charges were denied by the accused customs officials.

Colonel Foran and William J. Calhoun, prohibition director for New Jersey, were in Washington for an investigation of the charges later today, it was stated.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

RIDICULES PARROT FEVER THEORY

No disease is communicable between birds and humans, and, in fact, there isn't a disease that can be spread from one bird to another with the exception of white dysentery. Such is the statement of Florence Jenkins, New York's only bird doctor. Miss Jenkins ridicules the statements of many experts who warn the public against an epidemic of parrot fever.

MERGER OF CHURCHES CONTINUES AS THEME

5,000 Delegates and Speakers from All Over World at Columbus Meeting

COLUMBUS, Jan. 23—Unification of the Christian church throughout the world continued to be the theme of the Pentecostal centennial celebration, as the sessions were resumed here today. More than 5,000 delegates and speakers from all parts of the world are attending the centennial, which will continue until Saturday.

Declaring that the nations of the world have not worked hard enough to win international peace, Frederick Norwood, pastor of City Temple, of London, closed yesterday's session with an address before the Ohio Pastors' convention, which is being held as a part of the centennial.

The English minister expressed little hope for any immediate development in the progress of the cause for world peace. He declared that a future development of the soul will turn human interest toward the spiritual things of the universe and away from the grossly material.

"Science, especially physics," Norwood said, "is becoming more and more interested in the study of the characteristics of space with a gradual, but certainly-growing disinterest in the facts of human nature."

Other speakers who addressed parts of the convention yesterday were Dr. William O. Thompson, president-emeritus of Ohio State university, chairman of the Ohio Pastors' convention; Mrs. Judick Kim, extension secretary of the Student Volunteer movement, a native of Korea; Dr. George W. Richards, of Lancaster, Pa., president of the Theological seminary of the Reformed Church; Dr. W. H. McMaster, of Alliance, president of Mount Union college, and several prominent Ohio ministers.

NEW OHIO K. OF P. HEADS ANNOUNCED

List Named in Official Count Here: Marietta Man Grand Chancellor

Other grand trustee candidates besides Truby and Dunn were H. M. Boehm, of Springfield, and M. A. Bridge, of Columbus.

A. H. Kunkle, of Springfield, and G. L. Behrens, of Columbus, were candidates for supreme representative beside Brumi, Dunn and Rose, the three elected.

Two of the grand lodge officers who were elected yesterday will be immediately advanced one station as a result of the death of Judge A. G. Agler, of Canton, former grand master-at-arms. F. G. Sparks, the grand master-at-arms elect, was advanced to that post from grand inner guard to fill the vacancy caused by Agler's death. H. R. Snyder was advanced to grand inner guard to take Sparks' place. The present advancement of Snyder leaves a vacancy in the office of grand outer guard. This office will be filled by Robert F. Featheringham, of Bergholz. E. J. Jenkins, the grand outer-guard elect, will take office with others at the annual ceremonial next September.

Committee Reorganized

A meeting of the legislative committee of the grand lodge was held here yesterday for reorganization purposes. A vacancy caused by the death of Charles Smith, of Bedford, was filled by the appointment of Judge C. E. Chittenden, of Toledo. Two other vacancies on the board will be filled within the next 10 days by appointment by Judge Justice, it was announced today.

Say Black Duck Smuggling Affair Promoted by Ring

BOSTON, Jan. 23—The Black Duck smuggling affair, which ended in the death of three of the speedboat's crew off Newport, R. I., and the wounding of the fourth was promoted by a Boston liquor ring, according to federal investigators who will present the facts to the grand jury, it was learned at federal building today.

The long investigation conducted by Deputy Surveyor Thomas P. Finnegan and Customs Agent Owen P. McKenna at Newport netted the government sufficient evidence on which to proceed against the group of suspected "liquid barons," it was stated.

12-Year-Old Girl, Only Survivor of Bus Tragedy at Berea, Calls for Playmates

BEREA, Jan. 23—A confused and frightened little 12-year-old girl lay in Berea Community hospital here today propped among downy white pillows and sheets, and twitching now and then from the pain of her broken leg.

She, Ethel Mae Davidson, miraculously enough, is the lone survivor of yesterday's horrible bus crash in which her two brothers, Willis, 14, and Vernon, 7, with seven other of her playmates and a bus driver, were instantly killed.

It is hard for Ethel to understand. She has played her last game of tag with Jake, Evelyn, Juanita and the others. Never again will she be able to play "mother" and "house" with these playmates who were closest to her.

Now she must find new playmates.

Ethel's first thoughts when she came out of the anaesthetic administered at the hospital to allow removal of gravel which had been ground into her broken leg, were of "Willie, Vernie, and . . . the others?"

Her father, Will Davidson, a usually irascible railroader, replied softly: "They're all right, dear."

Mrs. Davidson, the mother, was a pathetic shocking figure today. Standing in front of her home yesterday watching the children school bus draw away with her children, she saw the train looming down on the bus as it approached the crossing. She saw the impending tragedy and when she saw the crash was inevitable, she turned her head. She could not look.

Hundreds of the curious visited the scene of the crash last night.

They walked up and down the tracks, picking up ripped schoolbooks, buttons and scraps of clothing that were strewn along the tracks.

LA RUE BOY WINS SPEAKING CONTEST

Robert Millisor Is Awarded First in District Oratory Meet

of Cardington schools, and A. C. Kennedy, of Worthington, member of the teachers' training department of Ohio State university.

The meeting last night was presided over by C. B. Rayburn, county superintendent of schools. The Meeks orchestra, under direction of Miss Dorothy Miller, furnished musical numbers.

The Winning Oration

The winning oration given by Millisor last night was as follows:

"Many sweeping statements have been made to the effect that farmers are poor business men, because they do not keep accounts and know so little about their business. Usually the more removed from farming the speaker is, and the fewer facts that carry any truth he has, the more eloquently he can talk on the subject. On the other hand the farmer is rarely found who does not keep some kind of an account, but these do not come up to what the criticiser has in mind. If anyone doubts this let him go out and talk to some average farmer about his work in farm accounting or how he analyzes his business. Probably, in a few cases, the visitor may find a farmer who comes up to expectations because he has an elaborate set for farm accounting books. But in the majority of cases he will go through a series of walks from the house to the granary, where the farmer has scratched down the amount of grain he has threshed, and from there to the hog house where he has a date scratched marking the time the old spotted sow will farrow. Perhaps if you approach him after a day of hard tiresome work all the information you will receive is a few grunts and a muttered answer that he hasn't any time to feel on four or five big looks on how he does his farming. Rich there is the greatest trouble between farmers and farm accounting; they believe that before accounts amount to anything they must fill out an elaborate set of ledgers, an array of cash books and four or five journals. This is not correct. In the majority of cases this kind of accounting is not needed.

"How many farmers after a hard day's work feel like filling out several pages of receipts of expenditures for the day; therefore the more simple the method that obtains the required results is the best. Such a system usually consists of an inventory at the beginning and end of the year and a record of cash receipts and expenses.

Easiest System

"To further show how this analyzes his business, we will make a more thorough study of the system. An inventory at the beginning and end of each year is one of the easiest kind of accounts to keep and one of the most valuable. Inventories are an accurate and efficient index of how much financial gain or loss has been made during the year. Several times I have heard farmers say that they do not need to keep accounts because they do all their business through their bank. I suppose they figure that if they have more money in the bank at the end than at the beginning of the year, they have made money. This statement is entirely incorrect, because even though there is less cash in the bank, he may have built a new barn or he may have more grain and livestock on hand, or he may have been in debt and has sliced his debts down considerable. An inventory will bring this out and show you exactly what your profits are. Inventories are the only correct means of determining net worth and changes in the same. Net worth is the amount of cash one would have if he sold all his property, collected all bills owed him and paid all his own bills. This can be determined because in an inventory we have an itemized list of everything used in the farm business and its value. It is certainly worth while for a farmer to know which direction he is going financially and why. An inventory is valuable but is too simple; it merely shows us the changes in net worth and does not show us where and why these changes are being caused. If a farmer keeps a record of cash expenditures and receipts as well as an inventory he is able to analyze to the following extent—he can tell which way he is going, how fast, and why he is going as he is. In most of the state colleges, the farm management departments have prepared farm account books that enable us to analyze the business with the minimum of work. It is possible, with this analysis, to find the strong and weak points and thus determine ways of improvement. It will never do a farmer any good to try to build up his business until he knows what is wrong with it. Many times have I patched a small leak in an automobile tube only to find I had done my work for nothing because I had not discovered where the real leak was. Such is a farmer's business. He must build up all points even instead of finishing off his good points and allowing the profit leakers to lag. And to accomplish this end and to analyze his business he must have some efficient system of farm accounting.

Examples Given

"In conclusion I want to take as an example two Franklin county farmers whose business, after they kept accounts, was analyzed for the Ohio State farm management class. Their two farms were as near alike as two peas. They joined each other, but the farmer on one was poor and the other rich. The poor farmer raised the best but did not make the most labor income. The figures on the two farms were: Labor income on the high farm, $1,885, on the low farm for the year the income was $185. This condition had been existing for years but through the use of accounts it was abolished because they could trace the trouble down. They found that the main troubles were: The good farmer received $2.01 for every dollar's worth of feed that he fed, while the poor farmer only received 98 cents. The cows each made $165 for the high farmer while they only made $26 for the low farmer. If these two farmers had not started an account it would eventually have ended in bankruptcy of the low farmer. As it is the accounts have brought out the faults of their systems and they can be repaired. There is an old saying which goes, "It is never too late to mend." Let all the farmers procure account books, find out what is wrong with their present system and their pockets will be filled with the money that has before been wasted."

no matter how large and powerful, could get through the huge ice drifts. Safe passage of the expedition would be insured if the powerful Norwegian whalers could hunt the little party from Little America within 15 days, the department said.

The minister was informed that one of the Norwegian whalers, the Nilsen-Alonso was reported close, "steaming north through the pack," its master, Vernuli, having declined to assist Admiral Byrd without direct orders from his owners."

The department also made public instructions sent to Ambassador Dawes, at London, to ask the assistance of a British vessel, the Southern Princess, understood to be whale fishing in the vicinity of Ross sea and ask that vessel be ready to proceed to Admiral Byrd's assistance upon Dawes' request.

Below zero temperatures set the southland to shivering. Arkansas, Texas and Tennessee suffered from near zero cold. Fayetteville, Ark., was reported as the coldest spot in the south with 25 below zero. Unofficial temperatures in Missouri ranged near the 30 degree below level.

Two more deaths were added to the cold wave's toll in the Chicago area when George Steiner, 22, fell dead yesterday and Mrs. Catherine Miller, 49, was found frozen to death in her backyard at Chicago.

More than 70 families were forced to flee in night clothes when flames wrecked two large apartment buildings in Chicago yesterday. They were given emergency shelter from the eight below zero temperature in near by buildings.

Some relief may be expected in the Chicago area later today, according to C. A. Donnel, weather forecaster. At dawn the temperature here was five below zero.

PARITY PLANS ARE OUTLINED AT MEET

First Full Session of London Naval Arms Conference Is Held

world conditions and that of a way was found for general reduction or navies, the United States navy could be reduced. He expressed a fervent hope that a way for general reduction would be found.

His remarks were comparatively brief but Dominion his speech to emphasized that parts with Great Britain was the keystone of the whole American policy.

Following Stimson, the other chief delegates rose to speak one after an other in alphabetical order.

Tardieu Cites Position

A. E. Fenton, speaking for Australia, emphasized the need for national security. He declared that Australia had learned from experience the necessity for national security.

Premier Tardieu of France followed with the most extensive speech of the day. He quoted exhaustive statistics designed to show that France was entitled to rank with the highest from the standpoint of naval needs.

He served notice that France's needs must be considered most seriously and declared that she must be represented by a navy large enough to protect her far flung colonial possessions on all seven seas.

He gave detailed figures depicting the length of coastline and length of lines of communication between the colonies which France had to protect in the interests of her trade.

He asserted that the absolute tonnages based on the needs he described could only become relative if it were made clear whether in the event of a conflict France would have to depend solely on her own navy or whether there would be international collaboration against the aggressor nation.

British Dependent

Premier MacDonald dwelt heavily upon the fact that the isolated position of the British Isles made Great Britain depend on her sea power for her very bread.

"Free access to the sea is a matter of life or death with the British empire," he declared.

He asserted that Great Britain's desire for sea power was not based upon the acquisition of wealth or territory but based upon "the will to live."

He declared that "the will to live" was the foundation of British naval policy.

The Indian and Irish Free State delegates then followed with brief statements in which they promised their heartiest cooperation and then Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy launched into a dramatic exposition of Italy's position.

Italy, he declared, had to have parity with any continental power but was prepared to reduce to the utmost any other power would go.

Favors Maximum Cut

He said that Italy favored a maximum reduction in armaments and was willing to leave to the powers at the conference to determine the size of armaments but would have to reserve the right to determine the complexion of her own navy within the limitations prescribed by the conference.

Like M. Tardieu, Signor Grandi, who spoke in English, stressed Italy's needs because of her long coast lines and her necessity for food imports.

Former Premier Reijiro Wakatsuki, the chief Japanese delegate, declared that Japan's purpose was to promote peace, economy and goodwill.

He reminded the delegates of the accomplishments of the Washington conference of 1921-1922 and declared that the present conference was a continuance of the Washington parley in purpose.

The New Zealand and South African delegates made the closing speeches which were brief statements in which the need of their countries for protection as learned in the World war was stressed.

It was regarded likely that another full meeting will not be held until next week.

Private Discussions

Premier MacDonald said that more can be accomplished by individual negotiations between the delegates upon specific points of difference than in a general meeting.

This French and Italian delegates will negotiate privately on the basis of parity of their navies, the Mediterranean powers will hold similar private negotiations over the security pact, the United States and Great Britain will discuss cruiser strength and Britain and France will discuss French cruiser ratios.

Hence for several days the conference will break up into numerous private discussions between double and triple powers on controversial issues relating to themselves alone.

The chiefs of the various delegations were to meet at 4 o'clock this afternoon at 10 Downing st. to discuss the procedure for these private meetings.

"We will work by groups of delegations," Premier MacDonald stated. "The heads of the various delegations will appoint experts and subcommittees as necessary."

Guilty Simply of Acidity!

That persistent feeling of tiredness—that clouded mind—that lack of dash and zest—that missing punch that decides so many situations in business—are all usually due to an acid system. Excess acid, formed in the stomach as a result of our unnatural eating habits, causes acid-indigestion with gas, sourness and burning and sets up poisonous putrefaction in the gastro-intestinal canal that saps our strength and vitality, taxes our nerves and pulls us down physically and mentally.

Magnesia Oxide, developed in Germany by a famous 108-year-old pharmaceutical house, corrects acidity in the right way! Upon contact with the acid in the stomach, Magnesia Oxide generate nascent, or active, oxygen. The "live" oxygen stimulates the alkaline gastric mucus, checks putrefaction in the gastro-intestinal canal and stimulates the activities of the intestinal walls which aids the natural movement of the bowels. All three effects are necessary to the true correction of acidity.

5-Day Acidity Test

To ascertain just how "acid" you are, make this test. Get a package of Magnesia Oxide from Bradley's Drug Store or any other good druggist. Take two after each meal for five days and see how much better you feel—how much more soundly you sleep and how much more energy you have. If you don't get more than amazing results, return the balance of the Oxide to the druggist and he will refund the purchase price promptly and in full. A-1-8 General —Adv.

Daily Proverb—"One can not keep peace longer than his neighbor will let him."

The Berlin police authorities are searching for a red who is held to be the forger of one of our new $100 bills. It's worth noting that, while the hatred of communists is deepest for this country, they do not lack appreciation of the worth of our currency, which they counterfeit in preference to that of any other nation.

President Hoover has announced that the department of labor reports that the tide of employment all over the country has changed in the right direction and that there is less unemployment than there was ten days ago. That doesn't sound a bit like a bar to the glad prosperity song.

The keeper of a toll gate on a Maryland road is said to refuse to lift his gate for the passing of rum-running cars until they settle by turning over a bottle or two of their goods. Here's a pointer for Uncle Sam. Let him erect toll gates on every road and thus drain the rum-runners both, going to and coming from their source of supplies.

The city of Washington is all worked up over what is held to be a mountain lion which is roaming about its outskirts, but the chances are a million to one that it will not do anything like the damage to Washington citizenship worked by any one of her blind tigers.

A big New York department store has cut the price of standard makes of cigarets to ninety-nine cents for a 200-carton on which the government tax alone is sixty cents. If the anti-tobacco people do not hurry up their tobacco prohibition legislation this great country of ours is liable to become addicted to the cigaret habit.

Anyway, Ambassador Dawes is in position to show that the fog which held him up and prevented him from arriving at the conference in time to hear King George's address was the heaviest experienced by London in years, resulting in the deaths of two persons and the injury of a dozen others; that he was not upon this occasion merely the victim of pleasant dreams.

Editor William Allen White, of the Emporia Gazette, told the members of the Kansas Press association that "advertisements tend to make people dissatisfied with what they have and wish for better things and the race is benefited." William had better look out or he will find himself without a job. If he keeps on, the self-constituted reformers may get together and put advertising out of business as a spreader of discontent.

Expenditure of Seven Billions.

Washington estimates that the expenditure for construction and maintenance of public works and utilities in the country, this year, will exceed all records, amounting to almost $7,000,000,000. This enormous total, almost half the amount of our national debt, it is stated, doesn't include expenditure for residences, commercial and industrial structures and other private operations. Such is the announcement made by Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont, based on statistics compiled by the new construction division of his department.

Of this practically $7,000,000,000 total, $3,250,000,000 will be represented by announced expenditures planned by public utilities, railroad and telegraph companies. Returns from twenty-six states show provision for expenditures aggregating $1,778,742,000 for public works, and partial returns from the other twenty-two states show planned expenditures amounting to $1,275,000,000 for the same purpose, which will make the aggregate expenditure of the states of the union for public construction $3,053,742,000. Added to this the construction planned by the federal government for the year, the total mounts to $3,335,000,000.

In contemplated construction for the year, New York naturally leads with a total of a little over $175,000,000. It will be interesting to Ohioans to know that their state comes second in the list with a planned expenditure of $233,000,000. Texas follows with a $130,000,000 program, and Massachusetts is fourth with a program calling for $105,000,000.

The entire program, which is in line with President Hoover's plan to maintain, if not better, present-day conditions, can hardly do other than cause a vast improvement in the employment situation and add generally to prosperity, but the very ambitious state programs mentioned necessarily will be felt by those who bear the taxation burden, which, in the last analysis, comes to just about all who are not dependent on others or their communities for support.

Still, none of us can prosper when there is stagnation in business and industry, and, all of us prosper in business and industrial activity, and thus it is that those who bear the burden get return from it.

Tragic Loss of Human Life.

The school bus horror near Berea, Wednesday, with its attendant loss of ten lives, coming so close upon that at Shreve in which seven school children were killed and nine seriously injured, makes evident that the degree of care is not being exercised which should attend the transportation of children to and from their schools. That the demolishing of another school bus, which was hit by a train near Ravenna about the time of the Berea tragedy, was not such as to be added to the steadily-growing list of school bus accidents in the state which have been attended by life loss was a matter of the merest trifle of time. The bus destroyed had delivered its load of pupils not over ten minutes before it was wrecked.

It is related by witnesses that the Berea bus had stopped and waited while two passenger trains had passed in opposite directions and was struck by a fast train which followed one of them. The crossing is so situated that the driver could have had an unobstructed view of the track in both directions, which makes explanation of the accident the more difficult, unless it were due to the fact that the windows of the bus were badly frosted, a fact observed by several who saw the bus a few minutes before the accident, and that his view thus obstructed, the driver assumed that, two trains having passed, he might proceed in safety.

There is no regulation of such buses save that of the school boards, which may explain the number of accidents suffered by them in this and other states, as it seemingly is the policy of some boards to employ for the transporting of pupils to and from school such persons as may most advantageously in a monetary way be secured regardless of their probable fitness for a service which demands the exercising of the utmost vigilance and care in appreciation of the mission entrusted to them.

As Governor Cooper is reported to have stated, Wednesday, in a letter to the state school director in which he commented on the fact that the accident was the second horror of the kind within thirty days, both of which he held preventable had proper precaution been taken, "We must put a stop to the tragic loss of life due to wanton carelessness."

But the immediate action recommended by the governor in the absence of state authority to regulate the operation of school buses, that of compelling the railroads to place proper signals at such crossings, will hardly remove the menace. The driver who did not observe the approach of a train on a track of which the surrounding country afforded him an unobstructed view both ways, would hardly have noted a crossing signal.

But some preventive means must quickly be taken to prevent recurrences of such tragedies. If accidents of this kind are to continue, it will be a matter for regret that the centralized school system was ever adopted in this state. We can not afford to educate the young of the agricultural districts of the state at the expense of such inroads into the ranks of the state's youth. The price in human life is too awful. Such a toll can not be tolerated.

A Mrs. Coffin Van Rensselaer, of New York, praises congress, saying that its members work hard. Well, why shouldn't they do something for the $10,000 salaries they draw, to say nothing of the extras?

Dr. Frank Glenn told Altoonans that "the most difficult lesson American democracy has to learn is to tolerate leaders who are great enough to differ from their constituencies when necessary;" that independence is the need of great leaders. Just so, Dr. Frank, just so. But the primary need of the country, some may be inclined to hold, is to find great leaders who will measure up to his specifications.

All the volcanoes on the islands near Martinique are becoming active and the steadily-widening flow of lava from Mont Pelee is now within two miles of St. Pierre, from which all the inhabitants save a lone priest have fled, terrified by the fact that the action of the volcanoes in neighboring islands is the same as it was preceding the horror of 1902. Experience is a stern teacher, but a wonderfully impressive one.

Mack, restraining the latter from the use of the team name, "The Two Black Crows" in future productions from which he holds, he is to be left out. Detroit has installed all but the tubes of a $12,000 radio fire alarm, but can not use it because the Radio Corporation of America, so a dispatch from that city states, refuses to sell the tubes for the reason that its materials were not being used in the plant and that some used are infringements on certain of its patents. It might be judgment for the interests represented by the Radio corporation to realize that it is taking an attitude which has many features in common with those of a monopoly.

Wednesday's dispatches told of the saving of the lives of two men by their dogs, a farmer residing near Litchfield, Illinois, having been found unconscious in the snow, as the result of having been gored by a bull, by a neighbor who was led to the scene by the dog of the injured man, and a citizen of Cuba, New York, having been found unconscious, as the result of breathing fumes of a gas stove, by a party of friends found by his dog in a pool room and guided by the dog to his home. And yet there are people who haven't any use for a dog.

Care Needed in Glaucoma.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

There is no wonder that thoughtful persons observe the remarkable perfection of nature's methods. The human body, in its every part, is an instrument capable of adjusting itself to every condition it is likely to meet. Of all its parts, the eye must take first place in its remarkable adaptability to its purposes.

It must be expected that an organ so complicated will at times meet with trouble. One of the disabilities affecting the eye is known as "glaucoma."

The name given this disease is derived from a Latin word meaning greenish-blue or gray. It is appropriately applied to the disease glaucoma, because this ailment produces a peculiar greenness of the pupil of the eye. This is quite characteristic of glaucoma.

The victim of this complaint is likely to suffer great pain. The eyeball becomes very hard. The tension is sometimes so great it actually feels like a stone.

If you will close your eyelids and place the ends of your index fingers upon the closed lids, you will get an idea of the normal tension of the eyeball. Pressing first with one finger and then the other, you will observe the elasticity of the eye, its softness. In glaucoma, the feeling is entirely different. The tissues do not give at all under pressure of the finger tips.

The symptoms are due to an interference in the drainage of the eye. The fluid with accumulates in the front part of the eye is constantly renewed. The excess is carried away through a canal and ultimately gets into the general circulation. If this drainage system is interfered with the fluid accumulates in the eyeball and, eventually, of course, must fill it almost to the bursting point.

As you will see, the symptoms of glaucoma are just what might be expected. The accumulated fluid produces hardness of the eyeball. Pressure upon the sensitive nerves causes great pain. The eye becomes inflamed, the vision grows dim and, unless relief is afforded, blindness will result.

Various operations are recommended. In most cases they are successful. There are remedies which can be dropped into the eye to reduce the tension and relieve the pain. Every case of glaucoma is one requiring the expert attention of a specialist in eye diseases.—Copyright, 1930, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Editorial Opinion.

A TRAGIC QUESTION MARK.

As Colonel Lindbergh says, neither he nor any one else is in a position at present to say what caused the hideous catastrophe that befell the big T. A. T.-Maddux air liner near Oceanside, California. Yet there is sufficient evidence already to encourage the hope that it was not the fault of the mechanism so much as of weather conditions, which would have made the trip an exceedingly hazardous one regardless of plane or pilot. In any case, it should be the primary object of every one charged with investigating the tragedy to dispel every shred of mystery surrounding it. Public confidence in aviation can stand a knowledge of the worst far better than the rumors and guesswork that grow out of ignorance and multiply in the popular mind the chances inseparable from this new mode of travel.

It seems especially unfortunate that such a thing should have happened to a tri-motored ship of all-metal construction, since here were safety factors on which the groundling had come to place considerable reliance, both as against forced landings in dangerous territory and as against the fire hazard. Both were inoperative in this case and for reasons that, if possible, should be made abundantly clear.

Of course, it is obvious that metal is no protection in a crash that bursts the gasoline tanks and deposits the wreck in a pool of flaming fuel. But with three motors, why the crash?

An eyewitness of the flight as it was nearing its tragic finish thinks he detected a missing motor. This may have led the pilot to seek an emergency landing, a theory that is supported by the fact that very close to the scene of the wreck was an emergency landing field belonging to the navy. On the other hand, an examination of the wreck proves to the satisfaction of William Van Denseu, secretary of the San Diego municipal air control board, that all of the motors were functioning perfectly.

It was night, he points out, rain was falling and there was a low-hanging fog which had reduced the pilot's "ceiling" to no more than 200 feet. He thinks that for this reason Russell, the pilot, decided to turn back to San Diego and that in banking his plane to bring it about for the purpose he struck his wing against the hillside on his right. Hence the crash and the incineration of all sixteen occupants of the liner.

The great majority of airplane accidents, as carefully compiled statistics show, are due to some failure of the human element, frequently superinduced by impossible weather conditions. This may easily have been another of the kind. But let us, be sure, if the facts can be established, about those motors, and why, if they were giving the pilot trouble, he did not, with three, have enough reserve power in any event to glide to a safe landing on the emergency field just ahead of him.—New York Herald Tribune.

WE HEAR A KING.

Many Americans for the first time in their lives arose early Tuesday to hear a king speak.

It was 11 o'clock in London when King George V, grandson of Victoria, opened the naval conference. It was 6 a. m. in Columbus and 3 a. m. on our Pacific coast.

It was the king's function to voice the welcome of the British empire to the conference, to sound a keynote of world friendship and peace and retire to Buckingham palace.

Then the radio brought us other voices. Premier MacDonald, Secretary Stimson, representatives of France, Italy, Japan and the British dominions, all pledging armament reduction so far as compatible with security.

Thus, with the world listening in, was a step taken toward the vision of a world without wars between nations.

And thus does radio enter as a force for democracy and peace. Of course, the radio can transmit only what is said before the microphone, but a broadcast that carries the voices of a king and conferees from London to the farthermost parts of the world does tend to bring us all into closer understanding.—Columbus Citizen.

GEORGE, SAILOR AND KING.

A pleasant little man who would like to be a sailor, but can't have his wish, made a speech in London yesterday opening a conference that may sink a large portion of the world's navies.

There is a touch of the pathetic in this part played by George V, king and emperor—George the sailor prince, lieutenant of the Royal navy by virtue of his skilled seamanship, admiral of the same navy by virtue of his royalty, king because fate so decreed.

George, who loves the sea, who loves the British navy, wants the conference to succeed, wants the burden of naval armament to be lifted.

But as George the king stood there in the house of lords reading his speech George the sailor probably yearned for the smell of the salt, for the heave of the deck and the throb of propeller and stilled a pang for his lost love, the royal fleet of England.—Cleveland Plain Dealer, January 22.

Rabaul in New Guinea.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

Before the World war came along and cut it in pieces which changed considerably the colorful map of European nations, Germany was represented in the South seas by an island territory known as the Bismarck archipelago and Kaiser Wilhelm's Land. Now this territory, within a stone's throw of Australia, is under the control of that British colony. It staggers along under the awe-inspiring name of "The Mandated Territory of New Guinea."

Rabaul is the metropolis of that part of the territory known as New Britain and it is a South sea city such as one becomes acquainted with through novels, the moving pictures and the stories which cater to the almost universal imagination.

Rabaul, at present, offers a thoroughly international atmosphere. There will be found on its streets a sprinkling of the pre-war German colonists, adventurers from all parts of the world enroute to or from the gold fields of New Guinea proper, Chinese by the score, natives from the hills and English remittance men, those men, who, for one reason or another, were being paid to stay away from their homes. What stories lie behind some of them! Stories of failure, disgrace, almost every human emotion!

As is the case in so many of these South sea communities, Rabaul has an extensive Chinese quarter. "China 'cross the bay" is not distant, and through the past several decades large numbers of Chinese have emigrated to New Guinea. On the streets one sees the Chinese of old China in their loose pajamas and with queues hanging far down their backs. From the windows of their homes come the weird strains of Oriental music mixed with their unintelligible chatter. Then there are the young Chinese. The lads and girls who have been westernized. No pajamas or queues on these young men. They use the white ducks and Panama hats or pith helmets which have become the symbol of the "white man" in the tropics.

Many of the Chinese have become prosperous—to the advantage of the agents of American motor cars!

Conditions have changed in Rabaul. Time was—during the German regime—when the native blacks or the Chinese were kept apart. Now, under Australian control, all are on an equal footing and it is a serious misdemeanor to discipline the blacks in the way which was favored formerly.

I have merely sketched the vaguest outline of Rabaul. In my next article I shall tell you something about the natives, the "Kunakas." They are real South Sea Islanders. You've read about them before, now see them in Rabaul.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

This is a day of statistics. Among most interesting are some relating to value of education. Judging by the list the most distinguished people in the country it is estimated that out of 33,000,000 persons having only elementary school education $08 are destined to reach places of distinction. Out of 2,000,000 with high school education, 1,245 reach places of distinction. Out of 1,000,000 with college education figures show that 5,768 become persons of unusual importance.

In other words, if you had no schooling your chances of what is usually reckoned the success in life are one in 150,000. If you have had elementary schooling your chances are four times as great. If you have been to high school your chances are eighty-seven times as great. With a college education your likelihood of distinction in the world is increased by 800 times.

If these figures even approach accuracy there is something for boys and girls, young men and women, to think about very earnestly. Education looks like an extremely big paying investment.

The United States, with about six per cent of the world's population, produces forty per cent. of the world's minerals. And so on might continue to recount the enormous natural and developed wealth of this country. So fast have we become mechanically that we have developed ten horsepower for every man, woman and child. To do America's work with human hands would require sixty times as many adults as are now living on the earth. In the past thirty years the average factory worker has expended his output from three five square feet to 3,000 square feet. The paper maker has gone from twenty square feet to 20,000 square feet. And so one might recount the amazing facts of the continent's industrial revolution.

When we sit down and seriously think about the resources of this country, its constantly increasing population, its increasingly intelligent use of sound advertising, and its vastly improved means of transportation, we wonder how any one can possibly believe that it is possible for such a thing as "bad business" to be prevalent, permanent, or even probable in the United States of America.

So many lines of trade in the United States have for so many years enjoyed abnormally good business that a month or two of normal business is considered bad.

You have a Doctor's Word for this Laxative

IN 1875, an earnest young man began to practice medicine. As a family doctor, he treated many cases of constipation. He soon saw the harm in common purges and began to seek something better. Out of his experience was born a famous prescription now in wide use.

This prescription was written thousands of times. It proved an ideal laxative for old and young. Children like its pleasant taste. Older people like it because it doesn't gripe or cause discomfort. It is a mixture of fresh herbs and other pure ingredients; thoroughly effective for the most robust of men. Stimulates the normal muscular action of the bowels. So its use will not become a habit. As people saw how marvelously the most sluggish bowels are started and bad breath, headaches, biliousness, feverishness, or no energy, poor appetite, etc., are relieved by Dr. Caldwell's prescription, it became necessary to put it up ready for use.

Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is the world's most popular laxative. All drug stores have the generous bottles. The product never varies from Dr. Caldwell's original formula. So you can take it with confidence or give it to the youngest child.

Would you SNUB her?
...you Would

Attractive isn't she? And just as charming as she is attractive. Yet you'd probably snub her after you met her. Everybody does. She's the loneliest girl in Milwaukee—and doesn't know the reason for it and, sad to relate, there are millions like her.

How about yourself?

What makes you think that you haven't got halitosis (unpleasant breath), the social fault no one forgives?

One person out of three has halitosis—and doesn't know it. It never announces itself to the victim. It is prevalent because caused by common daily conditions (many of germ origin), arising in the mouth. If you wish people to like you, keep your breath beyond suspicion by rinsing the mouth with full strength Listerine which ends halitosis.

Kills germs — destroys odors

Listerine, used full strength, is an effective germicide which kills even the stubborn Staphylococcus Aureus (pus) in 15 seconds.

Therefore it combats odor-producing conditions in the mouth. Furthermore, being a powerful deodorant, it destroys the odors themselves.

Keep it handy in home and office. Take it with you on your vacation. Our free book of Etiquette is yours for the asking. Address Dept. H 1, Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

Belle Baker's Voice To Be Heard As Radio Offering Thursday Night

Noted Broadway Singer in Stardom After Remarkable Career

THE most poignant voice on Broadway—the voice that sang a hymn and brought down the house—comes to the radio Thursday night when Belle Baker, vaudeville headliner and luminary of that newer medium, the talking picture, appears as the feature of the Philco Hour from 10 to 10:30 o'clock over the Columbia network.

Belle Baker's voice, theatrically the making of her, was the continual cause of her downfall in her youth. When she was scrambling for existence in the East Side sweatshops of New York amidst which she was born, her joyful songs, carrying above the clatter of machines a tale of wasted time to the ear of the proprietor, landed her on the street time and again as one who loitered over her work to indulge in frivolous music-making.

The Victoria Music Hall was the first to introduce Belle Baker to what later was to become her public. Its proprietress, Mrs. Klein, felt that Belle's plaintive songs might appeal to the patrons—and her price was certainly right. Three dollars a week will not break any theater. She had been getting $2 in the garment factory.

Then a great producer discovered her and gave her a chance on the vaudeville stage. She scored a great success and for 35 years toured the vaudeville stages of the country, turning a cold shoulder to the stage offers David Belasco and other producers of drama made her. It was not until the recent near-perfection of the talking picture that she was induced to sign up with Columbia pictures, and under those colors she is now making productions. Her latest work, "The Song of Love," which pictures her in her favorite habitat—backstage at the Palace Theater—had a tremendously successful run on Broadway, and is now being shown at every boulevard crossroads in the country.

Woven into the fabric of crooning Belle Baker songs will be the voice of Lois Bennett, Philco's new featured artist.
